Pegging the Pound. Watch Able Japan. Henry Ford Resumes $6. Eugenie Dies, Again.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

FRENCH AND AMERICAN bankers urge the British to "peg" their pound at some definite price, the higher the better, and do it quickly.

British bankers remember that France cheerfully "pegged" her franc at 20 per cent of its value, and paid debts with these baby francs.

They know that, the lower the pound falls, the easier it will be for them to pay off their main debt of thirty-two and a half billions of dollars.

If they could imitate France and reduce the pound by 80 per cent, they, like the French, could pay off debts on a 20 per cent basis. They will not do that, but may follow the French reduction half way.

WHILE THE WORLD goes its way, "pegging" pounds, or talking about depression, and other minor things, Japan is making such minor worries seem unimportant.

Japan is in Manchuria, where she invested more than $1,000,000,000, and Japan intends to stay there.

Russia, resenting what she calls "Japan's impudence," sends more troops close to Japanese troops.

It seems incredible that Russia should risk success for her five-year plan in a war, but anything is possible. Japan, having defied the League of Nations, would not hesitate to do the same to Russia. Watch the East.

HENRY FORD has resumed his minimum pay of $6 a day.

It is remembered that Mr. Ford added $1 to the $6 AFTER THE DEPRESSION BEGAN, as his contribution in an emergency.

Mr. Ford has not reduced wages, he has canceled an extraordinary increase made under extraordinary circumstances.

It is to be remembered, also, by intelligent workers, that the minimum wage of $6 a day, now restored, was established by Ford when it meant an advance of 100 PER CENT in general wages.

HENRY FORD'S voluntary increase of $1 a day after the Wall street panic, costing him in 22 months, in EXTRA wages $35,160,101, amounts to more than all other "depression" contributions put together.

SOUVENT FEMME VARIE. "Often woman is different." Woman discovered the Empress Eugenie hat. Hat factories started up, thousands of hats were made in haste, overnight almost every woman had an Empress Eugenie hat on her head, and was looking, with one eye, from under the brim.

With that one eye she saw that every other woman had an Empress Eugenie hat, down on one side, up on the other. Now no woman wants an Empress Eugenie hat, the fashion is as dead as the Empress herself.

Hatmakers complain bitterly and wonder what else they can invent to make an appeal to woman's fancy.

Let us hope the foolish little skullcaps will not come back.

There is no beauty in them for the women, no profit for merchants.

The most becoming hat woman can wear is an old-fashioned Leghorn hat, with soft, wide brim, around it a wide blue or pink ribbon, falling 18 inches down the back.

If that be "mid-Victorian," make the most of it.

PRESIDENT HOOVER congratulates Kemal Pasha, ruler of Turkey, on the Turkish Republic birthday. Kemal deserves congratulation for wiping out much nonsense, veils on women's faces, control of human beings on earth by a religious personage, supposed to represent the prophet Mohammed, and especially for ending the rule of a viciously corrupt, cruel and murderous Sultan.

Italy should be thankful for Mussolini, Turkey for Kemal Pasha, Germany for Hindenburg, France for Laval and other able men that have known how to build prosperity on the wreck of war and pile up a reserve of 2,500 million dollars in gold bars, while cutting 80 per cent from the value of the national currency.

FOOTBALL PLANS to abolish the "flying wedge," which caused the death of Richard Sheridan, West Point player.

If football must exist, for the glory of schools and colleges and the encouragement of education, everything possible should be done to make death on the football field as unlikely as possible.

That "flying wedge," much older than modern football, had its uses when Alexander the Great employed it to send his soldiers through the Persian ranks that outnumbered him 10 to one. It is hardly suited to a game for boys.

YOU WILL AGREE with Alvan Macauley, of Detroit, that it would be preposterously unjust to load additional taxation on motor vehicles, of which there are 26,300,000 in the United States. The great majority of owners are farmers and men that employ automobiles in connection with making a living.

The tax would be unjust to them, and would discourage an industry which employs millions of men, at good wages, and should be ENCOURAGED in every possible way.

IF YOU ARE among the fortunate, and possess a $1 bill, you will read on its face, perhaps under a picture of George

The Irish and the Scotch have a football game on this afternoon here in the Stadium, which is cause enough for the sounding of brass and the clanging of cymbals, to say nothing of lusty shouting and general hubbub.

Carnegie Tech and Notre Dame go to the mat, turf, if you must, this afternoon for the eighth time, extending a series that had its inception back in 1922 and has continued, with only two breaks since. In the seven contests that have been played, the Irish have carved out five triumphs and Carnegie two. So the Irish enter today's game with an edge in victories, an admitted edge in all-round strength and in a victory stride that has carried 'em through 27 games without defeat.

A turnout of at least 50,000 is expected for the tussle, and given a good day, any sort of pleasant weather, and the crowd will approach the 60,000 mark. The advance sale indicated a crowd of just that proportion.

Tribute will be paid to the late Knute Rockne between halves when two buglers from the Greensburg American Legion Post No. 318, will sound taps for the former Notre Dame coach.

The Irish have a powerful eleven. Their record to date is impressive, to say the least.

Auto Death Jury Frees Mrs. Brown

LOCK HAVEN, Pa., Oct. 31.—(AP.)—The jury in the case of Mrs. Minnie U. Brown, charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Panion, of Lycoming County, in an automobile accident early last month, returned a verdict of not guilty here late yesterday.

Mrs. Brown is the wife of Arthur F. Brown, chief chemist of the Westinghouse Electric Company at Pittsburgh. A civil suit for damages has been brought by the husband of Mrs. Panion against Mrs. Brown.

CERMAK FLAYS POLITICS HERE

Relieve policemen of messenger boy and clerk duties and make them police under a chief separated from politics with the backing of a real Civil Service Commission. That is the way to combat crime, according to Mayor Anton J. Cermak, of Chicago, who was here today to attend the Carnegie Tech-Notre Dame football game.

Arriving aboard a special train at the Baltimore and Ohio Station this morning, Mayor Cermak was making a stopover en route to a political pow-wow with Alfred E. Smith, defeated Democratic presidential candidate in 1928, and John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, in New York tomorrow. He plans to express the feeling of Cook County and Illinois leaders that the nominee must have the backing of the Smith and Raskob camps.

More police were "fired" for failing to take orders in six month's of Cermak's administration, as the reform mayor, than had been discharged during the entire previous administration, he said. "Soft-snap" jobs have no place in police work, Cermak said, adding:

"We faced a worst financial condition than Pittsburgh. Now we are collecting 1929 taxes and operating on the 1931 assessments. We made all departments economize, put many workers on the stagger plan and the whole result has been more work accomplished than when I took office and at a saving to the city."

BLAST INJURES 2 FIREMEN

Trapped under falling timbers, two McKeesport firemen were injured slightly early today fighting fire which followed a mysterious explosion in a vacant house at 1821 Cliff street, McKeesport.

The blast aroused the entire neighborhood but did no damage to adjoining property. The house was destroyed.

The injured firemen, Capt. Albert Watson and Hoseman Samuel Weimer, of Engine Company No. 2, were standing in a small creek in the rear of the structure, when the wall collapsed. Blazing timbers showered them, knocking Weimer unconscious. Both were aided by fellow firemen, who removed them to McKeesport Hospital.

Firemen were summoned by a newsboy.

An American Telephone and Telegraph Company transcontinental cable, over which many network programs were carried, including the recent world series baseball games, was burned through.

DEPOSITORS' SCRIP PLAN PROPOSED

Chaplin Suggests Way to Free 'Frozen' Accounts And Benefit Business

The use of scrip to release frozen deposits in closed state banks was being discussed by Pittsburgh banking and commercial circles today in connection with the plan of State Banking Secretary William D. Gordon to relieve, before Christmas, distress of depositors in the closed institutions.

The new proposal, sponsored by James C. Chaplin, president of the Colonial Trust Company and vice chairman of the Clearing House Association, is designed to supplement Gordon's plan to have large stores and business firms extend credit to depositors.

The Gordon plan, about to be instituted in Philadelphia, provides for depositors assigning to stores that part of their deposits which the defunct banks are sure to be able to pay in return for credit of that amount in purchases at the stores.

CENTRAL CORPORATION

Principal objection to this plan has been that each depositor's trade would be confined to the one store to which he assigned interest on his deposit. Under the Chaplin proposal, a central corporation would receive the assignment and would issue to the depositors scrip, or the corporation's promise to pay, in small amounts.

Under this arrangement, the depositor could make purchases at several stores, paying in scrip, which the stores would hold until the corporation received its share

CREDIT POOL READY HERE

The Pittsburgh branch of the National Credit Corporation, established at the suggestion of President Hoover to administer the $500,000,000 bank credit pool, has completed its organization and is ready to do business.

The work of relieving banks can be started as soon as the board of directors of the National Credit Corporation in New York issues a call to banks to take up a portion of their subscriptions to notes of the organization.

The local branch has opened offices in the Union Trust Building. S. B. Congdon, formerly vice president of the Bank of Pittsburgh, has been appointed secretary and treasurer.

The loan committee, which will supervise the granting of credits to local banks, was appointed at a meeting of the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association, held on October 23.

ELIZABETH DONNER

STEEL HEIRESS ENGAGED

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—(AP.)—The engagement of Miss Elizabeth Browning Donner, of "Camp Woods," Villanova, Pa., and Philadelphia, and Elliott Roosevelt, second son of Gov. and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, was announced today by Mr. and Mrs. William H. Donner, former Pittsburgh residents parents of Miss Donner. It is understood the wedding day has not yet been set.

Elliott Roosevelt is 21 and Miss Donner 19. She made her debut at a dinner dance here last December.

Miss Donner's father is widely known in the steel industry. He was the founder of Monessen and Donora, Western Pennsylvania industrial towns, the latter being named after him. He is a former president of the Cambria Steel Company, and chairman of the board of the Pennsylvania Steel Company, also founder and president of the Donner Steel Company, recently sold to the Easton interests.

JUDGE GRAY REMOVES INDICTED MEN

Court Will Act Monday on Similar Petitions From Forward, Other Districts

Three Wilmerding election board officials indicted recently by the October grand jury today were removed from office by Judge James H. Gray in Common Pleas Court.

Judge Gray indicated that he would act on Monday on similar petitions submitted by voters of the First District of Forward Township, the Sixteenth District of the Nineteenth Ward, and the Second District of the Fifth Ward. A similar petition is expected to be submitted in the Twentieth Ward.

Judge Gray, declaring that he did not want any indicted men to serve on the election boards, said that he had been assured by Deputy Attorney General Ralph H. Frank that sufficient state police would be present in Wilmerding to make sure that the new board there is not molested.

The election board officials removed were Carmine Trenga, judge, and Joseph Filia and Louis Botti, inspectors. In their place he named Edgar Donaldson, judge, and S. L. Smith and S. Howard Smith as inspectors.

HOOVER SEES RECOVERY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—(AP.)—A sharp upward swing in public confidence, which has led already to a cessation of money hoarding and the end of small bank failures, is seen by President Hoover.

Almost exactly two years after deflation of the stock market began in 1929, the chief executive cited yesterday a "very great change" for the better in credit conditions with its practical effect evidenced by a recovery in wheat and cotton prices. He said:

"Evidence over the last week indicates that not only has hoarding ceased, but actually $24,000,000 of hoarded money has returned to the banks.

"The small bank failures have almost ceased and foreign exchanges are returned to a basis at which it is no longer advantageous to ship gold abroad.

"The practical effect of this recovery is shown in an increase in the price of wheat by 10 cents a bushel and cotton by $15 to $20 a bale."

Robert Williams' Condition Serious

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31.—(AP.)—Robert Williams, film actor, who recently came here from New York to appear in a motion picture opposite Constance Bennett, was in a serious condition in a Hollywood hospital today. He underwent an operation for acute appendicitis Thursday night.

Williams was stricken while his new picture was being filmed. He also appeared opposite Ina Claire in "Rebound," occupying the same role in the stage version.

HIS DOG FOILED HOLDUP

JAMES WETTACH AND "BUDDY VON SPINDLE," POLICE DOG

Mr. Wettach thanking his dog, which understands commands in German only, at his Babcock boulevard filling station today after the dog foiled a holdup by leaping for the throat of an armed, masked bandit and put him to rout. Mr. Wettach fired at him.

Police Dog Routs Bandit In Roadhouse Holdup

Leaping over a four-foot counter in the "Here We Are" gasoline station and roadhouse in the Babcock boulevard at Peoples road, Ross Township, a German police dog this morning forced the bandit to flee after he had attempted to rob James Wettach, 25, of 958 Jackman street, Bellevue, owner of the establishment. As the robber fled to where an automobile bearing a companion had been parked nearby, Wettach fired at him.

Wettach is a cousin of James Wettach, North Side assemblyman. He was alone when the holdup occurred.

The robber entered, gun in hand and a handkerchief over his face. He commanded Wettach to raise his hands. Instead, the proprietor fell to his knees and hid behind the counter.

"Buddy Von Spindle," the police dog, was asleep behind the counter. When he heard the noise he leaped over the counter with a snarl and the highwayman fled.

Wettach grabbed a revolver and ran to the doorway. He fired as the robber was entering the car parked a short distance from the door. Wettach believes that he may have wounded one of the two men in the automobile. Police were asked to search for a wounded robber.

Wettach said the dog was but 2 years old and had been born in Germany. It had been trained in military work and, about two months ago, was brought to the United States. Its usual daily fare includes a pound of meat, but today, according to Wettach, it was to get as much as it could eat.

Weather Man Jolts Gandhi Costumes for Halloween

The expected popularity of the Mahatma Gandhi costumes among Halloweeners dropped with the temperature which neared the freezing point in many localities early today.

With warmly clothed goblins and ghosts on every street corner and pumpkins with gleaming faces grinning from windows, Pittsburgh will observe Halloween tonight. Downtown Fifth avenue will be turned over to the mummers.

Open house will be observed at the county parks tonight. At Parish Hall, North Park and Spreading Oak, South Park, there will be Halloween dances, with well-known orchestras furnishing the entertainment.

The Businessmen's Association of the East North Side will sponsor a comic costume parade Monday night. Cash prizes will be given for the best costumes and makeups depicting the 32 favorite characters in the popular comics of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. George A. Schmacher is general chairman.

Dormont's celebration was held last night under the auspices of the Dormont Chamber of Commerce.

Two parades were held in the Mt. Oliver-Beltzhoover-Knoxville district last night. The Mt. Oliver-Knoxville Businessmen's Association staged a celebration and the second parade was held by the Hilltop Businessmen's Association of the Eighteenth Ward.

The Pittsburgh division of the United States Naval Reserve held a military dance in its armory in Grand avenue, Millvale, last night. Celebrations also were held in Braddock and Wilkinsburg.

SCHOOL MILLAGE LIKELY TO STAND DESPITE BUDGET CUTS

FINAL SLASHES REDUCE TOTAL $17,774

Finance Committee Report To Place Costs $219,757 Under Sum For This Year

Although the Board of Public Education budget for 1932 has been reduced $345,287.10, with curtailment of expenses in almost all departments, it was believed today the school tax of 11¾ mills would remain unchanged.

Final cuts in the budget were made at last night's meeting of the Committee on Finance and Administration when a decrease of $17,774.40 was reported.

Suggestions in a report by C. M. McKee, supplies superintendent, and Ben G. Graham, school superintendent, providing for a reduction of $27,886 in supply items were adopted by the committee which also authorized the slashing of $6,840 from employment office requirements.

$10,111 INCREASE

Additions totaling $10,111.40 consisting of $3,736.40 for the improvement of the cafeteria at Peabody High School, $2,000 for library books for Arsenal and Knoxville schools, $675 as additional premium on the increased school treasurer's bond, and $3,700 for salaries of new employes were made.

Budget requirements originally totaled $15,649,153.17, an increase of $52,529.34 over 1931. According to the final report of the finance committee, to be presented at the re-organization meeting of the board November 9, 1932 requirements will be $291,757.76 lower than in 1931.

AGE PLAN APPROVED

The committee also approved a suggestion by Dr. Graham that all teachers in city public schools who have reached the age of 62 may be re-appointed annually, provided only that the teacher has received a rating of "good" or better and that the teacher has successfully passed a physical examination.

Dr. Graham was told to prepare his plan in detail and to present it at the next meeting of the committee. It was pointed out that the plan will pave the way for more economies in the preparation of the 1933 budget, since old teachers receiving the maximum salary will be replaced by younger teachers who will receive the minimum salary.

CONFERENCES SCORED

Dr. A. L. Lewin questioned the value of conferences called by state education officials when budget questions had been disposed of. Dr. Graham had asked permission to go to Harrisburg with several school principals to attend a conference when Dr. Lewin intervened as a motion was being voiced, to say:

"Principals are absent too often to attend these Harrisburg conferences. What is the purpose of such a conference? What do they give us after they have been completed?"

President Marcus Aaron replied:

"Some time ago I went to these conferences and I found them very valuable to teachers and principals. I am sure they do a lot of good."

Dr. Lewin insisted, however, that he wanted a report of just what occurs at such meetings. He said:

"I think it's all a lot of nonsense. I want to see a report of this Harrisburg meeting. We got some reports from such a meeting in Detroit and they were very funny. Don't forget now, I want to see a report from Harrisburg."

Dr. Graham's request was granted and the meeting was adjourned.

GAS EXPLODES, TWO BURNED

Painfully burned when a gas explosion enveloped the kitchen of their home in flames, Mrs. Margaret Jones, 59, and her crippled son, Douglas, 24, are recovering in their home, 92 South Twenty-second street, today.

The explosion occurred when Douglas attempted to trace a gas leak with a match. The blaze that followed the explosion fired a can of crude oil with which Jones was making an anti-freeze solution.

Mrs. Jones was burned when she entered the kitchen to rescue her son. Both were taken from the burning room by firemen, and removed to the South Side Hospital where they were treated for burns on the face, head and hands.

Firemen confined the blaze to the kitchen. Damage was estimated by Capt. George Nichols at $150.

Firms Shorten Shifts, Keep All Employes

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 31.—Plans to distribute labor so as to give work to as many of their employes as possible have been put into effect by all glass companies here. In two mills a six-hour day is in effect, another employs its full force part of each week, and still another has its employes at work on alternate weeks.

All companies are looking forward to increased business in the near future, although it was said there was no basis on which to make definite forecasts.

SHOWDOWN DUE IN NAVAL ROW

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Battle lines were sharply drawn today as the knowledge of President Hoover concerning naval affairs and the integrity of the Navy League prepared to go on public trial.

Chief interest centered around the identities of the "jury" Mr. Hoover will designate to determine whether he is "abysmally ignorant" of the true state of America's sea forces, as charged by William H. Gardiner, president of the Navy League, or whether Gardiner has been guilty of spreading a "tissue of falsehoods" regarding the Administration's economy program, as charged by the President.

It was expected the committee of inquiry would be completed today. The executive last night was scanning a roster of the Navy League's membership, from which he intends to pick a large portion of the group he confidently expects will make Gardiner modify his words concerning White House policies.

SCRIP PROPOSED HERE TO AID DEPOSITORS

of the depositor's money and could redeem the scrip.

The new proposal is hailed as a vital addition to the Gordon plan. The rigidity of the banking secretary's credit proposal has been criticized widely since its announcement in Philadelphia Tuesday.

Under the Chaplin system, the stores would likewise benefit through a wider distribution of the credits which the stores must, of necessity, hold during liquidation of the banks.

Also included in the Gordon plan is a means to pay cash on hand to depositors at once, rather than wait for the machanics of liquidation as prescribed by state banking laws.

Gordon proposes to license a private banker to "buy" cash in closed state banks and distribute it on a pro-rata basis to depositors. In Philadelphia, he has already licensed John A. McCarthy, prominent banker.

McCarthy will "buy" the cash for $1 and "other valuable considerations." The "other valuable considerations" are his services in distributing the funds to depositors. In other words, he receives the banks' cash as salary and distributes his salary to depositors, avoiding the ordinary delay of liquidation. About $9,000,000 is already being paid out under this plan in Philadelphia, Gordon says.

DUNLAP WORKER OUSTER FAILS

The City Civil Service Commission late yesterday turned down the request of Col. W. R. Dunlap, Director of the Department of Supplies, that three men in his office be placed on the exempt list.

The three employes are Bert M. Doty, contract clerk; E. Boyd Birch and George P. Anderson. Placing of the employes on the exempt list would permit the director to dismiss them from service without a hearing before the Civil Service Commission, it was said.

Thomas M. Hansberry, secretary, said the Commission refused to put the men on the exempt list because of their long period of service with the city. It was said the three positions were sought by relatives of present office holders.

Governors Expected At Coal Conference

In addition to scientists and educators making a study of bituminous coal, governors of bituminous coal producing states and coal commissions seeking to stabilize the industry are expected to attend the third international coal conference to be held at Carnegie Institute of Technology, November 16 to 21.

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Tech, yesterday sent invitations to governors of several states and to a number of coal commissions that have been appointed to assist in relief of the industry. The economic problems of the industry will be discussed at the opening sessions.

G. O. P. SCORED ON POOR BOARD

K. William Schuchman, candidate for Poor Director, last night scored the Republican County organization for its failure to answer his questions regarding its attitude toward the candidacy of present directors, J. Clyde Miller, H. H. Dixon and Dr. W. L. Henderson.

Two letters have been written to County Campaign Chairman J. H. McClure, Schuchman declared, and remain unanswered. Schuchman declared the Republican organization will have a great deal of temerity to ask voters to accept the present Poor Board and vote the entire Republican ticket.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park has been studying the reports of the special investigating committee which declared the Poor Board has been guilty of violations of the law in the conduct of their office.

FOES DENOUNCE ARMSTRONG

Before an audience that jammed St. John's Lyceum Hall, South Thirteenth and Sarah streets, speakers last night declared that the rule of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong in the Seventeenth Ward, his home district, is broken.

They vigorously attacked Armstrong and his two chief lieutenants, William F. Ziefel and James A. Routley, for their alleged threats to discharge all county employes at once if they did not support John P. Kearcher for Alderman and Charles Zagorsky for Constable in the ward.

P. F. Riley, seeking to displace Kearcher as Alderman, told the gathering that Kearcher's claim that he had Mayor Charles H. Kline's support was untrue. Riley said the Mayor told a committee of South Side businessmen that he would follow a "hands off" policy in that contest and in the constable fight.

Bingham Urges Beer As Job, Revenue Aid

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Modification of the Volstead act to permit the sale of 4 per cent beer has been urged by Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, as an aid to employment, the farmer and tax revenues.

The Connecticut Senator, long an advocate of modification, said in a radio address last night that 100,000,000 bushels of grain would be used to produce beer if it were made legal. He added it was reasonable to suppose that 100,000 persons would find employment in making and distributing the brew.

McGovern May Open Fire on 'Machine' at Gathering Of Committee Members

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, as chairman of the Republican County Committee, is expected to preside at a meeting of the 2,800 city and county committeemen and women this afternoon in North Side Carnegie Music Hall that will climax the campaign of the party ticket headed by C. C. McGovern and W. D. Mansfield as candidates for County Commissioner.

As a rule, the windup meeting of a Republican campaign appears to be a love feast with party officers and nominees exchanging felicitations and pledges of enduring loyalty but there is a certain amount of anxiety in the air concerning today's gathering.

McGOVERN ALARMS

McGovern is "viewed with alarm" by members of the reactionary group of the party owing to his concept of the duty of a public servant and to his recent act in permitting his name to be used as a candidate on independent tickets with C. M. Barr as a running mate.

Mansfield ran far ahead of the field in the primary and while he repeatedly has stated he intends to support himself and McGovern and all other party nominees except those for Director of the Poor, numerous Mansfield workers are openly allied with the Democratic nominee for County Commissioner, David L. Lawrence. There is a current rumor that four of the county officials seeking election have decided to cut McGovern.

The latter is said to be aware of the situation and if there are any veiled barbs at his candidacy with Barr on tickets other than the Republican, McGovern might "blow off the lid" in his characteristic language.

Republican rallies will be held tonight in Junior High School, West View; East McKeesport High School and Community Hall, Coraopolis.

McGovern, Barr to Head McKeesport Rally Tonigh

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern and former State Senator C. M. Barr, Independent party nominees for County Commissioner, will carry their campaign tonight to McKeesport, where a meeting will be held in the Pennsylvania Hotel.

McGovern and Barr are also scheduled to speak tonight at meetings in Buckingham Hall, Allison Park; Coraopolis High School; Watt Street School, Wylie avenue, and Moon Run High School.

Barr, in an address last night in the lecture room of Carnegie Library, Oakland, declared that if elected he would attempt to eliminate the added expense caused by having a city and county tax assessing board. He said:

"The small home owner is over assessed and the burden of taxes is driving mills and factories to other nearby counties. The present assessors, as a whole, are not expert appraisers and are not competent to give a scientific and equitable assessment of real estate. This will be changed if McGovern and I are elected."

Attorney F. O. Spotts, Jr., addressed a meeting last night in Union High School, Turtle Creek, in behalf of McGovern and Barr.

Lawrence Ridicules Democratic Opposition

David L. Lawrence, Democratic nominee for County Commissioner, addressing a meeting last night in Garfield School, replied to critics who issued a statement Thursday declaring they repudiated his leadership as chairman of the Democratic County Committee. He spoke also at meetings in McKeesport and in Wall Borough.

In the Garfield School speech he stated:

"The desperation of Allegheny County's political pharisees opposing my election as County Commissioner is evidenced by the ballyhooing of the refusal of 'nine prominent Democrats' to support my candidacy.

"For the last five weeks emissaries of my opponents have traversed this county in a still hunt for disgruntled Democrats. Out of the 160,733 that voted the Democratic ticket at the last presidential election, they were able to sign nine."

Our currency thinks silver is good enough for little people with $1 bills. From $5 up you enter realms of high finance, and read on your bills "redeemable in gold at the United States Treasury, OR LAWFUL MONEY, at any Federal Reserve bank."

The words "or lawful money" seem to imply a little hedge on the gold basis.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW, who returned, praising Russia in time to see England throw out every sort of Socialism by an overwhelming Tory vote, is shocked, grieved, annoyed, and says his native land must now prepare "for any sort of folly."

It need not, fortunately, prepare for the George Bernard Shaw sort of folly.

H. G. Wells, now here, young and in the prime of his remarkable talents, looks at Britain more intelligently, and says the election was no great Conservative victory, but "a hurried call for the doctor."

The country, sick, threw out the Socialist-Labor party that had failed to cure it. If the Tory doctor does no better, Wells thinks radicalism will come back more emphatically, and "socialistic, even communistic."

Storing of 250,000 Cans Of Food for Needy Begins

Removal of more than a quarter of a million cans of fruits and vegetables to the Terminal warehouse, Carson street, was begun today by the Surplus for the Needy Committee.

The produce, canned during the summer at the factory of the committee in Spring Garden avenue, will await distribution by organized Pittsburgh charities, according to Attorney Harry I. Miller, chairman.

Storing of the cans marks the wind-up of the campaign, the largest of its kind in the United States, according to official figures from Washington. Surplus fruits and vegetables were collected from farms within a 60-mile radius, by volunteer workers.

The produce will be used to feed the needy of the district this winter.

Officials estimated from 80 to 10 truckloads of cans would be transported to the warehouse. Trucks and labor in the movement have been donated and the only expenditures have been for the purchase of sugar and for freight charges on the cans, Attorney Miller said.

ARIZONA OFFICIALS ASSAIL MRS. JUDD'S MURDER STORY

TRUNK SLAYER PRISONER IN PHOENIX JAIL

Sheriff Promises to Blast Her Version of Killings; Crowd Cordial on Return

By W. M. BISHOP
International News Service.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 31.—Winnie Ruth Judd awoke in her private cell in the Maricopa County Jail today, Halloween, to face realities—to face the cold circumstantial facts surrounding her confessed slaying of Agnes Anne Leroi and Hedwig Samuelson.

As County Attorney Lloyd Andrews and his assistants and Sheriff J. R. McFadden and his deputies gathered for their first conference and comparisons of evidence, Winnie Ruth Judd was expected to "break"—to tell and explain the mysterious phases of the trunk murders.

The belief she will look upon her crime "through different eyes," is based on Sheriff McFadden's statement:

"We are prepared to blow her story into smithereens."

PLAY BOYS ANXIOUS

She will be required to explain damaging facts disclosed to her to refute the scores of conflicting statements she has made in her several written confessions.

And as the story she is expected to tell about her spectacular career here—a career which brought her clandestinely into many lives and homes of Phoenix's "big business play boys"—there is a fearful anxiety among this populace which cannot be denied.

Whose home is going to be wrecked now?

Whose names will be injected into this love mystery?

These all important questions were written in the curious eyes of 25,000 men and women who stormed the courthouse yard for hours, through a blistering sun, for just one fleeting glimpse of Ruth upon her arrival here late yesterday.

Curiously and much to the surprise of Mrs. Judd, the mob was a friendly one. The party was five hours late in arriving and apparently the patiently waiting men and women were so glad to see her they could not restrain their emotion.

Even before she had alighted from Sheriff McFadden's car they were yelling:

"Hello, Ruth! Hello, Ruth!"

The greeting seemed to be infectious. As Sheriff McFadden almost roughly whisked her into the jail it was still ringing in her ears.

Her court ordeals do not begin until Monday. And this date may be postponed at the request of Attorney Paul Schenck, of Los Angeles. He is not expected to arrive here to prepare for her defense until tomorrow afternoon.

EVIDENCE NEAR END IN SUIT OF NAN BRITTON

Proceedings Delayed 5 Hours As Judge Confers Wtih Counsel; Minors Barred

International News Service.

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 31.—The $50,000 libel suit of Nan Britton against C. A. Klunk, Marion hotel owner, neared a jury today as the attorney for the complainant was ready to resume reading extracts from her book "The President's Daughter."

It was indicated that Miss Britton's lawyer, William F. Marsteller, may conclude presentation of his evidence today, paving the way for the final arguments. Marsteller yesterday afternoon began reading passages from a second edition of Miss Britton's book after the defense, led by Attorney Grant Mouser, had rested its case.

Miss Britton's complaint accuses Klunk of having sold copies of a book called "The Answer to 'the President's Daughter'" which, the woman alleges, defamed her character.

TRIAL DELAYED

The proceedings yesterday were delayed five hours during which Federal Judge John M. Killits conferred with attorneys for both sides. When the trial was resumed the courtroom was filled with spectators despite Judge Killits' intimation that he might order private hearings. The onrush of spectators earlier in the day prompted the Judge to order all minors barred from the courtroom. He instructed a court officer to eject all persons under 21 years of age, but no minors were discovered among the spectators.

STORY ASSAILED

In bringing the defense case to a close, Mouser read passages from "The Answer to 'The President's Daughter,'" tending to cast doubt on Miss Britton's claim that she was able to enter the White House during the administration of the late President Warren G. Harding. The extracts, introduced into evidence, declared that it is impossible for any person to enter the White House except under "rigid surveillance."

Miss Britton's attorney opened his case by reading from the introduction to the second edition of "The President's Daughter," where it was contended that the first edition was hampered by the seizure by New York police of plates and printed proofsheets. The plates and sheets were returned following a court hearing.

AUTO CRASHES BRING DEATH TO THREE

Republican Ward Chairman, Guest Hurt as Car and Castle Shannon Trolley Hit

Three are dead today and half a dozen injured, including a Republican ward chairman, as a result of automobile accidents.

Richard Riddle, 22, of Unity, was killed early today when a car driven by Leroy Taylor, 21, of North Bessemer, skidded in the Frankstown road near the city limits and crashed into a pole. Taylor was arrested.

Anna May Burkhart, 18, a Negro, was injured fatally in a collision at Main street and Fourth avenue, Carnegie, this morning. John Robinson, Negro, of Aliquippa, driver of the car in which she was riding, and Richard Swewis, of Ellwood City, Pa., driver of the other machine, were arrested.

DIES OF INJURIES

Edward Saunders, 79, of 4515 Fillmore street, struck by an automobile at Fifth and Aiken avenues, October 25, died today in St. Margaret's Hospital, according to a report to the county morgue.

Lon MacIntosh, of 36 Grape street, Republican chairman of the Thirteenth Ward and city water assessor, and Lillian Clements, 22, of San Francisco, a guest, were injured seriously last night when his car was demolished by an interurban trolley car on the Castle Shannon road. They were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

GIRL IN HOSPITAL

Dorothy Ammon, of Ohioview, Pa., was injured when a car driven by her escort, Carl E. Smith, struck a street car at Murtland and Penn avenues. The woman was removed to Columbia Hospital.

Edward Webb, 21, of 1122 Greenfield avenue, was injured last night when his automobile collided with another machine driven by Grant Dodds, 35, of Third street, Duquesne, at Beechwood boulevard and Lilac street. Dodds, also injured, was taken along with Webb to Homeopathic Hospital. A city physician examined Webb and pronounced him under the influence of liquor.

A hit-and-run driver who, police say, struck an automobile while driving the wrong direction in an underpass of the Ohio River boulevard, was being sought by Woods Run police today. S. V. Forberg, of the East Liberty Y. M. C. A., driver of the damaged car, was slightly injured. Traffic was tied up while the wreckage was cleared.

WELFARE FUND ADDS $225,500

Additional subscriptions totaling $225,500 in the campaign of the Welfare Fund and Allegheny County Emergency Association, to be held November 9 to 23, were reported at a meeting of the corporation division yesterday.

Most of this was a subscription for $200,000 from Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company announced by A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of directors of the company. Of the Westinghouse contribution, $50,000 was subscribed in the name of the company's employes, who will also contribute through the employe division of the campaign.

Other subscriptions were: Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, $15,000; Chamber of Commerce Building Company, $4,000; Pittsburgh Construction Company, for the Duquesne Slag Products Company and the Concrete Products Company, $2,500; Pittsburgh Mercantile Company, $2,000; Mine Safety Appliance Company, $2,000.

PLANE TRAVEL LEAGUE FORMS

Application for a charter for the Air Travel League of America was filed in Common Pleas Court, with its purposes the promotion of public interest in aeronautics by encouragement of study, discussion and practical application of the science of aeronautics by concerted action, the collection and dissemination of educational, statistical and other information and the establishment and maintenance of a bureau for imparting instruction. Headquarters will be in Pittsburgh.

The subscribers, also trustees for the first year, all from Pennsylvania, are: Harvey R. Vanderslice, Aliquippa; Harry V. Herlinger, Midland; Dr. Will Grant Chambers, State College; Herbert Spencer, Aspinwall; Harry Miller, Lansdown; Meyers B. Horner, Washington; James Killius, Johnstown; John C. Nicklas, Stowe Township; E. B. Leaf, Ambridge, and Dr. Gerald D. Whitney and James McGill Boyer, of Pittsburgh. Judge William H. McNaugher fixed a hearing for November 23.

15 NATIONS O.K. ARMS TRUCE

GENEVA, Oct. 31.—(Universal.)—Fifteen nations early today had signified their acceptance of the League of Nations' proposed one-year arms truce, for which the time limit on acceptances expires today at midnight.

France, Great Britain, Germany, Belgium and Holland have yet to accept, it was stated at the League secretariat. Hope was expressed that they would accept today for if they do not, the acceptance of the United States automatically voids itself.

The American acceptance, like the Italian and Japanese, specifies that the present construction programs are not to be altered by the truce, which provides for maintaining present army, navy and air force levels for a year.

Other acceptances include Siam, Latvia, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Soviet Russia, Chile, Egypt, Switzerland, Albania and Luxembourg.

NURSING LEAGUE ELECTS HEADS

The twenty-ninth annual convention of the Pennsylvania State League of Nursing Education closed yesterday with election of officers. Miss C. Ruth Bower, principal of the school of nursing of West Penn Hospital, was elected president.

Other officers are Anna W. Lauman, superintendent of the Philipsburg State Hospital, vice president; Miss Sarah Krewson, directress of nurses and principal of the school of nursing of Wilkes-Barre General Hospital, secretary, and Miss Mary Francis, director of nursing and principal of the nursing school of Reading Hospital, director.

Political Frameup Plea Fails to Save Burglar

A plea that politics was the cause of his arrest failed to save Jerome J. King, 29, of 1926 Forbes street, from a sentence of three to six years in Western Penitentiary yesterday on a charge of burglary.

King was arrested September 21 accused of attempting to remove a screen on a window leading to fire escapes at 701 Ridge avenue, North Side. He was charged with trying to enter the room of two nurses, Gwenith Summersgill and Margaret Matthews. King told Visiting Judge O. C. Kent his support of an anti-Kline candidate caused his arrest.

TUBE PURCHASE FIGHT REOPENS

A petition to reopen, before the October grand jury, the approval of the purchase by Allegheny County of the Wabash bridge and tunnel for a new traffic outlet to the West End was presented and argued late yesterday before Judge James H. Gray.

Atoorney Louis Caplan, for the plaintiffs, urged that the purchase price of $3,000,000 would have to be supplemented by $5,000,000 additional before the improvement was completed and that the grand jury, in approving the project, was not in possession of all the details.

County Solicitor M. B. Lesher opposed the petition. Judge Gray said he would withhold his decision probably until Monday. The grand jury approved the action of the County Commissioners for acquisition of the bridge and tunnel October 14. Exceptions filed by taxpayers are yet to be disposed of.

CARNEGIE HERO AWARDS MADE

The Carnegie Hero Fund Commission has announced rewards for 48 acts of heroism recognized at the meeting of the commission yesterday. Among those recognized as heroes were the late Harold F. Warner, of West Willow, Pa., and the Rev. William C. Williams, of Welch, W. Va.

Warner lost his life in an unsuccessful attempt to save John Van Elk, 34, from drowning in Donner Lake, Gelatt, Cal., last year. A bronze medal will be presented to his father.

A bronze medal was the award for the Rev. Mr. Williams who saved Samuel Thorn, Jr., 15 months old, when fire swept the home of the child's parents.

The commission awarded three silver medals and 45 of bronze. Ten of the 48 heroes lost their lives and the dependents of five were granted pensions aggregating $4,140 a year. In another case the parents were granted $1,000 subject to the commission's approval of its use.

CITY LOSES ROW WITH WOMAN

Because of the strenuous objections of Miss Anna Hilke, the city Bureau of Water has apparently abandoned its original intention to raze a small garage on what she says is her property on Bonaventure street and Perrett way, to lay water pipes for a new house on Oswald street.

When city workers threatened to take legal measures to obtain a right of way for their pipe trench, Miss Hilke stood her ground and refused to permit them to dig underneath her garage structure.

According to Robert Black, of the Columbus division of the Water Shed Department of the Bureau of Highways and Sewers, water will probably be piped to the new house from Chellis street, an approximate distance of 400 feet.

Five Die as Plane Plunges Into Sea

SPLIT, Jugoslavia, Oct. 31.—(AP.)—A military airplane manned by two officers, two sergeants and a flying instructor crashed this afternoon in the Adriatic, and all five drowned.

Because of the accident a military aeronautical display scheduled for today was canceled.

Two Grocery Stores Held Up, Robbed

When a man held up the grocery of Sam Kushner, 300 Pacific avenue, last night, he got an argument—and $6 in silver.

Vincent Cosanova was held up in his grocery, 419 Cedarville street, last night, by two armed youths, who escaped with $25.

Fireman Overcome, Rescued at Blaze

Hoseman Lambert Cox, of Engine Co. No. 6, was overcome by smoke last night while fighting a fire in a two-story frame dwelling at 5307 Broad street, occupied by Elmer Holtz and Michael Clairzi.

The fireman collapsed while fighting the blaze in the cellar. He was rescued by companions and removed to Mercy Hospital. The damage to the home was estimated at $1,100. The cause of the fire was not determined.

Dentist, War Veteran, Killed Cleaning Gun

FREEDOM, Pa., Oct. 31.—Dr. Charles E. Watkins, 32, of 598 Third avenue, dentist and World War veteran, was found dead from a gunshot wound in his left temple at his home late yesterday. A gun which he was cleaning is thought to have been accidentally discharged.

COUPLE FIGHT OVER DIVORCE

Accusing her husband, Clarence Ashbaugh, of being a bootlegger with a substantial income from his business, Mrs. Helen Ashbaugh, 422 Kenmont avenue, Mt. Lebanon, asked for an allowance of alimony and counsel fees in Common Pleas Court.

In his suit for divorce, charging cruelty and indignities, Ashbaugh gave his address as 2903 Spring Garden avenue and said they were married in June, 1919, and that he has been living at 20 Rostock street, North Side, with Lila Gibson, on whose account, she declares, he is seeking a divorce.

Ashbaugh alleged he gave his wife $75 to $100 weekly for "a long time" for household expenses, and that she squandered it. This she denied. She also denied striking him with a chair, cooking pot, stove lifter and poker, as he alleged.

Officers Elected By Master Painters

P. A. Freyvogel was elected president of the Master Painters' and Decorators' Association of Pittsburgh at the annual meeting of the association last night in Fort Pitt Hotel. Freyvogel succeeds John B. Dewar.

It was announced that the meeting of the state association would be held in Pittsburgh, January 12, 13 and 14. Other officers are: Vice president, L. C. Fitzel; treasurer, B. L. Raymond, and secretary, J. J. Kassouf. The new executive committee consists of Herman Werner, P. J. Garvey, A. E. Jones, Julius Gulden and John B. Dewar.

Wife, Brother Acquitted In Husband's Death

GLENVILLE, W. Va., Oct. 31.—(AP.)—A verdict of acquittal was returned by a jury late yesterday in the case of Mrs. Beatrice Langford Garrett, 27, and her brother, Homer Langford, 29, who were tried on charges of killing Grover Cleveland Garrett, 46, the woman's husband last January. They were tried jointly.

The jury was out two hours.

Mrs. Garrett was the first woman ever to be tried on a murder charges in Gilmer County since its formation more than 85 years ago. Her husband was a Stouts Mills merchant and farmer.

The state had charged Langford held Garrett while Mrs. Garrett fired a bullet into his brain.

The defense contended Garrett killed himself with a .22 calibre rifle. Mrs. Garrett testified her husband had "melancholy spells" and four times had threatened to end his life.

During the trial the defense charged, through testimony, that Rose Garrett, 12-year-old stepdaughter of Mrs. Garrett, had been threatened with physical torture and a term in the reform school if she did not say her stepmother had killed her father.

State Establishes Route 88 Detours

The Automobile Club of Pittsburgh today announced that the state Highway Department has placed two detours on route No. 88, south of Pittsburgh. New construction between Finleyville and New Eagle necessitates a detour of nine miles via Elrama and another detour is in effect at Menongahela. Both detours are over paved roads.

Two Women Leave $22,000 Estates

The $22,500 estate of Mrs. Laura B. Neff, of Wilkinsburg, was left to her grandchildren, under her will, probated in the Register's office.

Virginia Russom, of McKeesport, left her $22,000 estate to her daughter, Mrs. Agatha C. Catanzaro; her son-in-law, Samuel Catanzaro, and their children.

Man Denied Divorce, Blamed For Trouble

Frank L. Hanna, 835 West Main street, Carnegie, was refused a divorce from Marie J. Hanna, Flynn avenue, Carnegie, because he was more at fault than she for their marital difficulties. In his opinion refusing the decree in Common Pleas Court, Judge William H. McNaugher said:

"We are of opinion that, with fault on both sides, libellant was the more serious offender."

They were married in 1908 and parted in September, 1929, and have three children.

Hymie Wins Point In New Trial Fight

CLEVELAND, Oct. 31.—(AP.)—Hymie Martin, now serving a life sentence for the murder of former Councilman William E. Potter, yesterday won the right to file a petition in error against the refusal of Common Pleas Judge Walter McMahon to grant a new trial.

The Court of Appeals, which granted the petition, also has before it an appeal from the verdict on the ground it was against the weight of the evidence.

Poison Murder Trial Evidence Complete

LEBANON, Ind., Oct. 31.—(AP.)—The last bit of evidence in the Carrie Simmons poison murder trial has been put into the record.

The case of the 47-year-old woman who is alleged to have caused the death of two daughters, Alice Jean, 10, and Virginia, 14, has been adjourned until Monday when attorneys will begin closing arguments. Submission of the case to the jury is expected Tuesday.

TWO SERVICES CELEBRATE PROTESTANT REFORMATION

MEMORIAL HALL, MOSQUE TO BE SCENE

Lutheran Brotherhood, Churches Sponsor Event; N. Y. Minister Speaks

Two services celebrating the Protestant Reformation will be held here tomorrow night. The Lutheran Brotherhood of Pittsburgh will be in charge of the service at Syria Mosque, while the Evangelical Lutheran Churches of Pittsburgh, affiliated with the Missouri Synod, will hold a meeting in Memorial Hall, Fifth avenue and Bigelow boulevard.

Dr. Paul E. Scherer, of the Lutheran Church of the Holy Trinity, New York City, will speak on "Commemoration or Recovery" at the service in Syria Mosque. Music will be in charge of Homer Ochsenhirt, and the orchestra of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, North Side, will participate.

The Brotherhood has announced that the offering at the service will be devoted to relief work in Pittsburgh this winter under the direction of the Lutheran Inner Mission Society.

The Rev. Theodore Martens, of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church, North Side, will speak at the service in Memorial Hall. This service will be held under the auspices of the Church Extension and Joint Service Society of the Lutheran Churches of Pittsburgh and vicinity.

ALUMNI GROUP ELECTS NEW PRESIDENT

Catholic University Lay, Clerical Associations Unite at Meeting Here

The Rev. Leonard J. Ripple, pastor of St. Rose of Lima Catholic Church, Baltimore, was elected president of the newly united Alumni Association of the Catholic University of America at the closing session of the two-day annual reunion of the alumni held in Webster Hall. At the final meeting yesterday the lay and clerical alumni associations were united.

The proposed $20,000,000 expansion program of the university was discussed by Monsignor James Hugh Ryan, rector of the university. He stated that the immediate program calls for $1,000,000—the remainder to be raised later.

The union of the two alumni groups affects 20 regional bodies in the tri-state district. Father Ripple succeeds the Rev. William P. Curtain, of Sewickley, retiring president of the clerical alumni, and Carl G. Vilsack, the former lay group president.

Approximately 30 delegates attended. Included were three bishops. They were Bishop Hugh C. Boyle, of Pittsburgh; Bishop John Mark Gannon, of Erie, and Bishop Henry P. Rohlman, of Davenport, Ia.

Teacher 52 Years, Bible Class Head Gets Gold Medal

State Association To Honor Veterans

A teacher in the Brushton M. E. Sunday school for 52 years, Thomas Dean, tomorrow will be honored with a gold medal. The medal, awarded by the Pennsylvania Sabbath School Association in honor of his long service, will be presented to the veteran teacher at special services in the church at Hale and Kelly streets tomorrow morning, when newly-elected officers and teachers of the Sunday school will be installed.

Dr. J. Kirkwood Craig, secretary of the Allegheny County Sabbath School Association, will speak on "The Teaching Task of the Church."

Dr. R. W. McKenzie, superintendent of the Blairsville district of the Methodist Episcopal church, will speak at 4 p. m. on "The Struggle Against Pessimism."

GRAY SPEAKS AT CHURCH

Judge James H. Gray, of the Allegheny County Courts, will speak tomorrow night in the Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth street. The Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton will also speak on "Young Men and Women Who Win Today." In the morning service in the First Presbyterian Church, Arch street, the Rev. Dr. Frank J. Bryson will speak on "Autumn Meditation." Harvest Home services will be held by the Bible School at 9:45 a. m. All the classes will participate in the service and bring food, clothing and other donations for the poor.

PASTOR QUITS AFTER 5 YEARS

After five years as pastor of the Bethlehem Lutheran Church of Ridgway, Pa., the Rev. Oscar A. Benson will tomorrow close his work in that charge. He will go to Chicago in the near future, where he has been called to become pastor of the Salem Lutheran Church. Mr. Benson is a graduate of Upsala College, of East Orange, N. J., and Augustana Theological Seminary, Rock Island, Ill.

Mr. Benson

Church Continues Jubilee Celebration

Further services in the golden jubilee celebration of the Warren Methodist Church, Center avenue and Watt street, will be held tomorrow. A prayer and praise service will be held at 6 a. m. under the leadership of John Gray. Communion will be celebrated at the morning church service. At the afternoon service the Rev. H. R. Tolliver will speak, and at the evening service the speaker will be the Rev. J. W. Haywood, dean of Morgan College.

'Service the Lord' Sharpsburg Topic

The Rev. K. L. Cramer, of the First Baptist Church of Sharpsburg, will speak tomorrow morning in "Service the Lord." At the evening service his subject will be "The Joy of Salvation."

HOLD VESPERS FOR DEAD

For the first time in the history of the Sacred Heart parish, solemn vespers for the dead will be held tomorrow evening. The celebrant will be the Rev. Dr. Howard J. Carroll; deacon, the Rev. Victor I. Kennedy; subdeacon, the Rev. E. Lawrence O'Connell, and master of ceremonies, the Rev. Dr. Thomas P. Coakley.

Double vespers will be observed, the first being in white vestments for the Feast of All Saints. At the end of the All Saints vespers the officiating clergy will put on black vestments, the funeral candles around the catafalque will be lighted, and the male choir will sing the solemn vespers of the dead, after which there will be absolution at the catafalque. Edgar J. Bowman, organist and choirmaster, will be in charge of the music.

Young Writer

SAMUEL KWOK YING FUNG

Mr. Funk, Chinese student at University of Pittsburgh, whose one-act play, "From the Spray of Time," will be presented by the Dracomtra Players tomorrow night at 7:40 o'clock in the Mt. Lebanon Baptist Church.

MISSIONARIES TO GET RADIO MESSAGES

Presbyterians Complete Broadcast Arrangements To Far Distant Lands

Final arrangements have been completed at Station KDKA whereby radio messages may be transmitted from Presbyterian representatives in the United States to their missionaries in foreign lands. The station has offered the service on each third Sunday night of the month, beginning at 11:15 p. m. during November, December, January, February and March.

The Presbyterian Church will send messages to its stations in China, Korea, Japan, Africa, Latin America, the Philippines, India, Siam, Persia, Syria and Mesopotamia. Greetings will also be sent to the mission fields in this country including Alaska, Cuba, Porto Rico and Santo Domingo. Dr. Robert E. Speer, secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, is making arrangements with churches and families who have communications to send to their missionary representatives abroad.

UNION SERVICES IN OAKLAND

Union service of the Bellefield Presbyterian Church, Fifth and Bellefield avenues, and the First United Presbyterian Church, will be held tomorrow night in the Bellefield church.

The Rev. Dr. Robert MacGowan, of the Bellefield Church, will speak on "My Impressions of the Art Exhibit," and music will be furnished by a double quartet under the direction of Earl F. Collins, organist.

At the morning service, Dr. MacGowan's subject will be "My Church and I."

MISSION HEAD SPEAKS HERE

Miss Dorothy Ellerton, a missionary from Ganado, Arizona, will speak Monday night in the First Presbyterian Church, Sixth avenue, to the Alexandria Auxiliary. The young people of the Presbytery have been invited to attend the meeting.

Miss Ellerton will speak on the work of the mission in general and on the mission hospital, for which the Presbytery is raising funds. The hospital at Ganado is a memorial to Mrs. William McKelvy, of Pittsburgh, a past executive of the Women's board.

Services Resumed At Rodef Shalom

The first Sunday service of the season in Rodef Shalom Temple, Fifth and Morewood avenues, will be held tomorrow morning. Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson will speak on "Who Is a Good Citizen?"

CHURCH OPENS REVIVALS

A series of revival meetings, to continue for three weeks, will open tomorrow in the First Christian Church, Arch street and Montgomery avenue, North Side. The pastor, the Rev. R. E. Snodgrass, will preach. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Pollack, of Illinois, are scheduled to arrive next Tuesday to assist in the music, the childrens' meetings and in the prayer meetings. Services will be held each night, except Saturdays.

'Gentleness' Taken As Sermon Topic

"The Rule of Gentleness" will be the morning subject of the Rev. Samuel Hill, in the Butler Street Methodist Episcopal Church, Fortieth and Butler streets. At the evening service his subject will be "Night Scenes of the Bible."

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Events

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

November will be an important event for those in the hunting set. One outstanding date is November 7 when there'll be a joint meeting of the Rolling Rock, Indiana and Westmoreland Hunts. Hounds will meet at 2:30 o'clock that afternoon at the Brant schoolhouse near the Rolling Rock Club.

In the evening there will be a dinner dance at the Rolling Rock Club at which the men will wear pink.

Holiday Hunting

On Armistice Day the same Hunts will hold another joint meet with hounds moving off at 9 o'clock in the morning from Hoffman's Gate, near the Rolling Rock Club.

On Thanksgiving Day Rolling and Westmoreland Hunts will meet together at the Greensburg Kennels at 10 o'clock in the morning, and on November 26 the fixture will be repeated.

There'll be a special hunting week-end with one fixture at the Ligonier Fair Grounds Saturday, November 21, at 2:30 o'clock, and another the morning of November 23 at the Rolling Rock Kennels.

Rolling Rock will hunt Tuesday morning, on November 14 and November 18, too.

The Boston Symphony, last night at Syria Mosque, opening the symphony series of the winter, attracted such a large, brilliant audience that one would never have suspected that there was a depression. And a most responsive audience it was, too.

Symphony Attracts

Among the many I saw during intermission were Wilhelmina Balken, in delphinium blue chiffon, and George Pearson in black lace. In a group nearby I saw Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins and her daughter, Elizabeth, in orange crepe.

Nancy Brown was there, and Jane Sloan, and Mrs. Arthur P. Woolfolk, wearing a petunia crepe gown. Rosamound Fitch was there and Florence Carroll.

Among those I noticed in boxes were Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson in blue lace brocaded chiffon, Lydia Irish and Mrs. F. C. Irish.

Marie Louise Bickford chose a black velvet frock with cap sleeves of beaded white chiffon and Harriet Fickes was in peach satin, and Ruth Willock in black chiffon.

Younger Set There

Mrs. Henry Clay Bughman, Jr., wore garnet velvet; Mrs. William S. Moorhead, who sat in one of the boxes, wore black chiffon, and Mrs. John W. Lawrence, black and white chiffon.

Barbara Ewing chose a yellow satin gown, Mrs. George P. Bassett, one of the boxholders, was in black, and Caroline Mitchell, a deb of the season, chose a black velvet gown, over which she wore a brief jacket of white crepe having bands of mink at the flaring cuffs.

Virginia Willock I saw arriving, and Mrs. E. V. Babcock in black velvet and her daughter, Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Jr., in black satin.

The Samuel Harden Churches were there with Mrs. Church in black lace.

Striking Costumes

Others I had a glimpse of were Mrs. George S. Baton, Margaret Brainard in scarlet crepe, La Salle Dorrance in white satin with the long flowing sleeves banded in mink. Her house guest, Ruth Seymour, of Nayatt, R. I., were blue crepe.

I also noticed Mrs. William McClay Hall, the B. R. B. Townsends, Mrs. George E. Tener, and Kinley Tener.

Mrs. J. Twing Brooks chose blue lace, Miss Dorothy Slack, black satin. And I saw Mrs. W. H. R. Hilliard and Mrs. Thomas A. Robinson.

Mrs. John Joy Edson, Jr., was in black lace, Mrs. John Freeman in black lace, and Mrs. Charles Dahlinger in cream chiffon.

MISS ELEANOR COOK

$70,000 Building Only One Unit Of Group

When almost every Friday afternoon meeting fills the present clubhouse, it was to be expected that the audience gathered for the ground-breaking ceremonies yesterday would more than fill the College Club, which it did. As the weatherman had turned an unfavorable eye on the day, the only outdoor feature of the ceremonies was when Mrs. William Reed Thompson, first president and now honorary president, turned a spade full of earth.

Indoors, in the crowded auditorium, Mrs. J. Brooks Huff, the incumbent, briefly sketched the outstanding achievements of the organization—the permanent endowment of a cot in the Tuberculosis Hospital, the organization of a vocational bureau which was turned over to the United States government in 1908; organization of the Drama League, which came through the interest of the club's drama department, and the organization of the National Better Magazines Council, which was the outgrowth of a movement begun in Mrs. Frederick B. Chalfant's presidency.

Miss Cora Helen Coolidge, who organized the club, spoke of its early days, and Mrs. Thompson also reminisced. All the past presidents but two were present and were introduced, and then there was the customary Friday afternoon tea. All of this followed a talk by the Rev. Oliver H. Sisson on India, the scheduled lecture.

Organizer Speaks

The new building, which is to cost $70,000, will be only a unit of the clubhouse, which eventually is to have an auditorium seating 600. The unit begun yesterday will have a large foyer, a very large living room and tea room on the ground floor, a spacious dining room, private dining rooms and kitchen on the first floor and 18 bedrooms with private and semi-private baths above.

The present building will not be connected with the new one, at least not until later, so that activities will continue without interruption as at present outlined.

At the head of its November bulletins, the Aspinwall Woman's Club has printed the first stanza of the Rohrer "Pennsylvania" with a request that it be memorized. November's activities at the clubhouse begin on Monday with a joint meeting of the home economics and finance committee for the purpose of planning the annual turkey dinner on December 3. The literature and art department will visit the International Art Exhibit and have luncheon at the Institute cafeteria on Tuesday. Friday night is guest night when club members and their friends with the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary, on Sunday afternoon and evening, November 8, instead of tomorrow, as previously announced.

per cent of the hostess club was in attendance. But this club being ineligible to compete, the silver basket for attendance went to the Bridgeville Woman's Club, 20 per cent of whose members were present.

Mrs. R. F. Pitcairn presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. H. J. Fox, who has been ill. The chief program feature was a talk by the Rev. Dr. J. M. McQuilkin, on "Five Forgotten Words," which he named as laughter, compassion, loyalty, righteous indignation and statesmanship. Ethel Vance Conrad, soprano; Mrs. C. C. Fulton, accompanist; Naoma Earnestine Marxen, piano, and Tom Gullette, trumpet, furnished the music and the Woman's Club of Rosslyn Farms added a pantomime.

The nominating committee elected includes Mrs. E. W. Young, Mrs. S. J. Corbett, Mrs. W. E. Brosius, Mrs. J. T. Anderson and Mrs. Sydney Kaufman.

7 New Women's Clubs Admitted to Federation

Seven new clubs, the Young Women's Club of Duquesne, Turtle Creek Woman's Club, Literary Review of the North Side, the Juniors of Sheraden and Braddock, Community Club of Thornburg and the Clairton Woman's Club, have been admitted to the Allegheny County Federation of Women's Clubs. This was announced yesterday at the quarterly meeting held in the First United Presbyterian Church of Carnegie, with the Carnegie Woman's Club as the hostess group.

Registration showed that 196 women were present, and that 50

Wilkinsburg Club Drama Group Gives Luncheon

Covers were laid for 73 at the luncheon given yesterday at the Penn-Lincoln Hotel by the drama department, Woman's Club of Wilkinsburg. An unusually fine program was presented during the afternoon. George William Smith, who conducts a Saturday class in drama study for the department, beginning it with an act from "Tailor Made Man." Miss Elizabeth Schrader, head of the costume department at Carnegie Tech drama school, spoke on stage costuming, illustrating it by lovely gowns modeled by Tech drama students. Miss Schrader also displayed some of Richard Mansfield's costumes which are now the property of the Tech drama school.

BLACK AND PINK DOMINATES THE EVENING COLOR SCHEME

PARIS, Oct. 31. A roseate glow illumines the sartorial horizon after dark, as women don dresses of pink or, what is even more liked, dresses of black combined with pink. As real evening clothes make an appearance at the various showrooms, it becomes evident that pink in its various shades is to be a color supreme this winter. It is immensely becoming to both blonde and brunette, and the indeterminate type can wear it with flattering charm. It lends a soft ethereal glow to the face and no woman disdains that either. And then it is exceedingly youthful as well.

THE MORE MATURE woman, however, despite the soft flattery of pink, very wisely prefers black with pink, a combination that is both smart and sophisticated as well as supplying the desired youthful note. She feels that however well done a frock that is entirely in pink may be, there is bound to be something too deliberately girlish about it. And this is often so. But black and pink is a sure-fire tip that is bound to prove a winner.

BOTH OF THESE frocks that we sketched are in black with brilliant touches of pink. The first is a Premet model in black chiffon lavishly trimmed with narrow Valenciennes lace that is dyed pink and applied in ruffled bands of varying width. The deep bertha knotted in back is removable. The second frock is by the clever Jenny whose clothes are much more sophisticated than they used to be. The model here sketched is in very heavy black satin. The decolletage edging at one side of the

Arlen Gets Train Ride as He Switches Parts With Phillips Holmes

By HARRISON CARROLL

Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 31.

New York will see Dick Arlen for the first time since 1924 when he goes East for the filming of "Wayward."

Dick has been chosen to play opposite Nancy Carroll, while Phillips Holmes, originally scheduled for the part, will stay on the coast to take Dick's place in "Two Kinds of Women."

As it looks now, Dick leaves in about a week, accompanied by Jobyna Ralston. That is, if Jobyna recovers from her illness in time. She is suffering from a severe attack of ptomaine poisoning.

Phillips Holmes

One nice thing about traveling is that the studio allows the stars $250 a week for living expenses and pays for their drawing room each way.

At that, Dick says he would rather stay in Hollywood. Jobyna has been in delicate health for some time, and they have their home here.

THAT GOSSIP AGAIN

Sidney Fox's contract was renewed in dramatic fashion by Universal. The option was up at midnight, and they were holding a preview of "Strictly Dishonorable" earlier in the evening. Universal officials sat back and watched how the audience took to her work. When the film was over, they promptly signed her up.

Joan Bennett

Jimmy Durante is all in the mountains. He was scheduled to make an appearance at the dinner given to Dr. Giannini by the film people, but had to wire his regrets. . . A welcome change from the usual "hello folks" was Bill Wellman's remark over the microphone: "They don't want to hear from a director any more than they want to hear about the depression." . . . Gene Markey and Joan Bennett are said to be getting along famously. . . . Ernest B. Schoedsack writes from Khyber Pass that the Bengal Lancers are too busy fighting to have much time for picture work. After being promised a regiment for a week, he was again disappointed when they had to form an emergency expedition to rescue a kidnaped Englishman.

PUBLIC'S GETTING WISE

One of the little dramas you see at previews:

A western picture was being tried out on a Santa Ana audience the other night.

Finally, came a terrible dilemma for the hero. He could block pursuit by rolling over a great balanced rock and starting an avalanche. But if he did, he and the girl would be marooned on the otherwise inaccessible hill top.

In this extremity, the girl spoke up:

"It doesn't matter, dear. I love you. Roll that stone!"

The audience promptly went into hysterics.

In the midst of it, the supervisor rushed up to the manager of the theater.

"Haven't you got some way of keeping these kid hoodlums out of the theater?" he demanded. "They laugh at the wrong time and spoil the film for adults."

IN THE NEWS

When M. G. M. gets around to making the Frederick Lonsdale story, Madge Evans will be playing opposite Robert Montgomery.

The last thing this young actress did was "The Greeks Had a Word for It." She is under contract to M. G. M. and can play the lead in my picture any day.

Lonsdale's title for his story is "Courage," but this will have to be changed [illegible] Barry wrote a play of that name some years ago.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

Romance

WHEN MRS. OLIVER obtained a divorce from her husband, she informed the world that she was through with men. The world, in Mrs. Oliver's case, was her particular neighborhood in a town in the Middle West. And there wasn't a soul in the entire section who didn't know the story of poor Mrs. Oliver, and that worthy lady's opinion of all men.

They all agreed that Mrs. Oliver had a definite reason for her ideas. She had been a kind and loving wife. She had worked to keep her man happy. She had given birth to two girls, and had seen them reach the ages of 9 and 11 as model children. She had done without things for herself in order to make her husband a little more contented. What else could a woman do?

Plenty, evidently, as far as Mr. Oliver was concerned. For the man turned out to be a criminal. When the police nabbed him, they found that he had stolen plenty. And when the courts were through with him, he was led away to serve 10 charming years in a select penitentiary.

This was horrible enough, but there was one thing in connection with it that rankled Mrs. Oliver just a little bit more. Her husband had not only been a crook of the first water, but he had been spending his money on other women. While his wife had been skimping and saving, her legal spouse had been tossing his dough away on the wildest women in that mid-western town. He had grabbed himself a swell time before the piper piped.

Accordingly, when Mrs. Oliver sued for an immediate divorce, nobody was surprised. Even her best friends agreed with her, which is a most unusual situation. They sat around and nodded while Mrs. Oliver outlined her philosophies.

"I'm not saying anything about your husbands," she observed, "but after my misfortune, you can't blame me for suspecting all men.

"As long as I live, I will never trust another man. I'm going to work for my daughters now, and I'm going to help them live down the disgrace their father brought upon them. They will live to learn what a mother can do. I only hope the neighborhood will forgive and forget."

A swell chance she had of any neighborhood ever forgetting anything. But Mrs. Oliver, after a year or so had passed, didn't seem to care any more. She kept working for those kids, and doing her best to keep them as neat as any of the other children. And she succeeded.

Just about eight years later both children suddenly took the fatal step. Almost within a week of each other, the two girls entered the state of holy matrimony—if that term is not already obsolete. They married two brothers in a nearby city, and neither of them took the trouble to ask mamma to the ceremony. But they did let her know the following day, which proves conclusively that they were still loving children.

After the first shock had worn away, Mrs. Oliver began to grow lonesome. The girls urged her to come and live with them, but the two couples were keeping house together and mamma had a shrewd suspicion that she might be in the way. Showing you that mamma was just a little wiser than the average mamma. She stayed away.

But that feeling of lonesomeness persisted. If the truth be known, she was beginning to miss the one big thing in every woman's life—Romance. She hated to admit it to herself, but she missed the company of a man.

Maybe, she got to thinking, all men weren't really bad. After all, why condemn all of them because of one who had turned out badly? Surely, somewhere, there must be a decent, clean-living man who would want the company of a woman as attractive as she was. Not a criminal like her first husband—but a quiet, home-loving man who would understand and respect her. There must be such a man around. But where?

In the advertising section of a monthly magazine, Mrs. Oliver found her answer. It was a "Lonesome Hearts" club that attracted her eye. For the small sum of $2 she would receive a list of good men who were looking for a good wife. She thought carefully for a moment, and then clipped the coupon. After all, the list of eligible males in her town was very small indeed. This list was nationwide. Why not try it?

She did. In due time, the list arrived. She wrote many letters, and after receiving replies from a score of men, she reached a decision. A Mr. Grant, of Box 500, in an eastern city, was the very man for whom she had been longing. His letter told the entire story.

Mr. Grant, it seems, was a widower. He had lost his dear wife some years before and was now employed in a large eastern hospital. He, too, was very lonely—and in Mrs. Oliver's letter he had found his first consolation in a long, long time.

In a few months, we find Mrs. Oliver in an ideal state of bliss. She was writing to Mr. Grant almost daily now—and he was doing just as well by his Nell. Each letter from Mr. Grant grew just a trifle more intimate; just a trifle more loving.

Small wonder, then, that Mrs. Oliver was so happy. Here, at last was her long-awaited romance. Here, at last, was her decent man. Here, at last, was comfort and friendship that would last her the rest of her days.

Mr. Grant was beginning to mention marriage. Not right away, of course, because he was too busy at the hospital. But in a year or so, he would be in a splendid position to settle down with a wife and home. That didn't please Mrs. Oliver too greatly. After all, she was mighty lonesome. Why wait another year?

The following day when her next letter came from Box 500 in that eastern city, she pounced upon a brilliant idea. She had been saving her money for some time, so why not take a trip east? After all, they would live in the east after their marriage. Why not go at once as a pleasant surprise to her future husband?

The more she fooled with the notion, the better she liked it. When her next letter from Mr. Grant was the most endearing he had ever sent, she made up her mind definitely. She placed her home on the market, said good-by to all her friends, sent a loving note to her daughters—and caught the fastest train east.

As the train roared on, Mrs. Oliver sighed with happiness. At last—Romance . . .

A week later we find Mrs. Oliver back in her mid-western city once again. Strangely enough she was alone. And if her condemnation of men had been harsh when her first husband was jailed, it was positively vitrolic now. She did nothing but rave and rant about the rottenness of all men. Her hate knew no bounds.

It wasn't until six months later that her friends found out what it was all about. And when they did they felt sorrier for Mrs. Oliver than they ever had before. Because they learned that Box 500—the romantic Mr. Grant's hospital—was really the state prison.

Plays, Players and By-Play

—By WILLIAM J. LEWIS—

Earl Carroll, who, no doubt, has gone farther up the theatrical ladder than any other former program boy from a Pittsburgh theater, will give some of his former fellow citizens a glimpse of his "Vanities" in the Nixon Monday night. Earl is so busy now that he finds time to visit the old home town only about once a year. The edition of "Vanities" that is coming is not the one that opened his new theater in New York in August, but is the edition that played all last season in the New Amsterdam Theater, New York. It features Herb Williams, Chaz Chase and Jack Benny.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 31.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Hal Roach; Eric Pedley, the great international polo player; Capt. Dickson and I had a wonderful flight here from Los Angeles in Mr. Roach's plane. I sure do like this country and this is one of the greatest cities in the world. Am mighty glad to report everything here looks fine. Few changes in cabinet positions but no disturbances whatever. Going out right now to visit my old friend ex-President Calles. He is still here—quite a bit here. When Mr. Morrow and myself sized him up here four years ago we said he was not only the strongest man in Mexico but pretty near anywhere.

Young 'Doug' Runs About In Davis

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Young Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., down on the Davis screen in a film titled, "I Like Your Nerve," tries to emulate his agile father and goes in for some acrobatics. He does all right.

The story has to do with a bashful son of wealth, who goes to Central America, seeking adventure and romance, at the advice of a palmist. There he meets a senorita, in the person of Loretta Young, and everything is sunshiney at the finale.

Before that, however, there's some excitement. He chases around the country in his motor car, gets into trouble with the soldiers and frustrates a kidnaping.

The senorita is betrothed to an elderly, rotund person, who is the richest man in those parts. But as soon as our hero sees her, in fact, as soon as you see her, you know that something is going to happen to that betrothal.

MUSIC

Boston Symphony Orchestra

SYRIA MOSQUE

PROGRAM

Concerto Grosso for String Orchestra, No. 12 ... Handel
Two Nocturnes ... Debussy
Nuages; Fetes.
La Valse ... Ravel
Ein Heldenleben ... Strauss

After an absence of a season the Boston Symphony Orchestra returned last night to Syria Mosque to inaugurate the concerts of the Pittsburgh Orchestra Association. Unfortunately there were vacant seats. Every lover of good music should have been there to hear such excellent playing.

Mr. Lissfelt

Koussevitsky made a striking program. There was the Handel Concerto for his strings, the Debussy for his woodwinds, Ravel and Strauss for every player in the orchestra, and the ensemble for the director's own intellect. Beyond showing the fine quality of the Boston strings, Handel was dignified but not overwhelming. Debussy's nocturnes, on the other hand, had many a subtle touch, especially during "Fetes."

Only Richard Strauss has written a valse comparable to Ravel's, and that in the "Rosenkavalier." Both are fashioned in the same spirit, the orchestration in both is similar, but the character of the opera keeps Strauss' dance joyously vulgar, while Koussevitsky is too much the aristocrat to dance in the Prater. His was a feverish valse, but he kept it within the palace gates.

Never before have I heard such a tone in the opening motifs of the "Heldenleben." It was as if the hero could not burst the fetters that withheld him from his struggle with the world. There was a throb of impatience among the players until the music burst into its first full tone, and Koussevitsky planned it superbly. The violin solo was strikingly played, though more impassioned than on last hearing, at which time it was still more effective. This Strauss tone poem is only for the virtuoso orchestra; surely there is no better than the Boston Symphony.

Trying to Make Navy Peaceful Starts a Battle

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

The menu for Halloween is big Navy men, little Navy men and all kinds of nuts.

Bill Gardiner says President Hoover has nothing to do with the Navy. It's up to Congress, which has nothing to do with it, either.

Mr. Hoover insists on an open apology from Bill over a national hook-up.

Bill is willing to mail the retraction but wants to use a hollow tree for a postoffice.

So the efforts to make our Navy peaceful have started a fight as usual.

Mr. Hoover wants to appoint a committee to investigate Bill's statements. And if, Bill is smart he will okay this suggestion and let the whole matter drop.

A committee is like one of Ziegfeld's show girls walking off the stage. It's a graceful way out.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: If you hear anything about Grant Withers slugging anyone at the Lido, don't mention it in the col'm . . . Max Gordon and Sam H. Harris, the producers, had you on the pan for hours yesterday . . . Why don't you expose all those radio stars and other headliners who make song writers split royalties with them, and also put their names on songs they never write—to get them to sing them? . . . Great story there—about this racket. It's a shame, too . . . The radio officials have finally broken up the Russ Colombo-Dorothy ("Follies") Dell romance for the good of the singer . . . Seems they told her that they want Russ to be seen with society debs and not Follies dollies . . . That's also a shame . . . She really loves Russ and he goes for her, too . . . All I say is this: If he really cares about her he'll tell them all to go to youknowhere . . . You talked too loud at the last broadcast, tone it down . . . George M. Cohan says be sure and be at the Madison Sq. Garden Sunday night for the Friars' greatest carnival and wrestling show . . . I assured him you would be.

I was sitting at the table next to Lew Brown and Irving Caesar at Moore's last night, and did they have Harry Richman on the pan, oh, boy! . . . Lew said that he made Harry what he is today, etc. . . That's Broadway, huh? . . . Tell Rian James there is a glaring boner in his book, "Love Is a Racket" . . . He puts the Millionaires' Club in the middle of Central Park at Sixtieth street and Sixth avenue . . . Did you hear the gag: "This week East Wind—Next week Ed Wynn!"

Incidentally, they say that Ed Wynn has changed so many in his cast that he is considering changing himself! . . . There is a wild rumor around that Greneker, of the Shubert press dep't, is on the way out—this is untrue . . . This Ruth Judd, held for the murder of those two women, has a name similar to two other murderers — Ruth Snyder—Judd Gray. Oh, I'll improve, I'll improve . . . When am I ever going to see you? . . . F. P. A. and others picked on the "illiteracy" that has crept into songs. They point out that in the ditty, "Life Is Just a Bowl o' Cherries," the song fashioners wrote it, "Don't take it serious" . . . This is not the fault of the songwriter, at all . . . It is the fault of a Yale man named Rudy Vallee, who insists upon singing it his own way: "Don't take it serious". The lyric reads: "Don't make it serious" . . . Are you going to cover the Galsworthy play?

That Walter Lissburger, 54, who married that Wilson woman the other day, is the same fellow who got influential friends to complain to the boss last year when you so predicted . . . One of the better-known advertising heads and the bride are plotting Renotoriety, and he hopped to Europe to be on the same ship with her and try to reconcile matters . . . No could do . . . Did Mme. Wallace, the lion tamer, thank you for being her press agent? . . . Your one line in diversion seekers Monday got her reams of space and pix the following day in nearly all the rags . . . What well-known comedian owes one-half million smackers to what trust company? . . . They say that Bert Lahr and Lou Holtz are feuding—because Lou is supposed to have cracked that Bert is only a "situation comic" . . . The reason Lyda Roberti screeched so at the Mayfair was that Earl Carroll thought she could take it, having had so much experience in eight weeks at the Palace with Holtz . . . Lyda screamed so—that Earl got scared and apologized right then and there.

Jerry K. Y. called. About that story in the papers denied by Raquel Torres, who asserted she wasn't in any car that kidnapers tried to stickup . . . Well, this is what happened: Walter Kane was driving, Raquel and her sister Rene were in the back . . . Outside of Newark, a big machine containing eight chaps stopped them and demanded $100. Walter kept the car in gear and, after listening to their demand, stepped on the gas, counting on the fact that he could outdistance them—and he did.

Have you seen the new "lace top" hosiery? There are cute little figures woven into the top of the stocking—plenty attractive, etc. . . Jim Kelly, who covers sporting events for a string of British papers, called. Wants some more on the Jack Kid Berg romance that faw down. . . Did you know that the Lombardy caters to color preference of its guests in the matter of sheets they are to lie between? . . . Grant Withers, for instance has lavendar sheets. . . Ernest Torrence, apple green . . . Mary Boland prefers and gets turquoise blue and Buddy Rogers rose pink! . . . Now isn't that just too darling? . . . Milgrim's has a new gag . . . If a woman is going to try on a new gown, they make her strip down to original, honest! . . . So that the salesgirl, it seems, can get the "correct sized foundation garment," etc. . . . There is a bilhard parlor near the New Amsterdam on 42nd St. which features this sign: "Times are so darn lousy you can play pool here for nothing every Thursday night."

Police Dep't sore about you tipping that lien about the you-knowhat—said they are working to round up the entire group of conspirators, so please lay off . . . If your dial phone keeps jumping all over the table and you squawk, the phone company will put an anchor on it, but they don't want the news to get around . . . Paul Whiteman's press agent married an Atlantic City girl this wk . . . Charles De Haven, who used to be in vaude and featured a dance with balloons, has invented a new brassiere that will make him rich . . . Groucho Marx very sick, had to cancel tour . . . Lots of good comment on Capone piece all day . . . One Cleveland critic said that Woollcott, as an actor, is overrated . . . Everybody wants to know who Izzy Elinson is . . . Izzy gave me another nifty for you . . . He says he has found out why Eugene O'Neill is so popular with the smart set . . . The extra intermissions in his lengthy plays give them a chance to come in late oftener and step on people's feet! . . . You owe Gloria's school two months' payment—$22 . . . Nothing else stirring, be a good boy—R. C.

Helen Hayes Grows Old In Penn

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"The Sin of Madelon Claudet," which opened in the Penn yesterday, won't be remembered as one of the year's great pictures. But, due to the presence of Helen Hayes, it is distinguished by one of the greatest individual performances ever seen on the screen.

Hers is a more impressive performance than Ruth Chatterton gave in "Madame X." And, to our way of thinking, this is the ultimate in praise.

In substance, the film is just another of those weepy dramas of betrayal and sacrificing motherhood. But Miss Hayes lifts it far above the usual tawdry sentimentalisms of such screen fare. She makes it real.

SYMPATHETIC HANDS

It is as if sympathetic hands had picked up the shattered odds and ends of the tragic life of this Madelon Claudet and, with caressing fingers, oozed them, bit by bit, into the lens of motion picture cameras.

Miss Hayes sweeps one along, with the power of her dramatic talents, from youth, through middle life and to old age. All the way, she is mistress of every emotion, all the way, her art of makeup keeps pace with her acting art.

EFFECTIVE SUPPORT

A well balanced cast is in support of the star. Lewis Stone is effective as a wealthy and kind admirer, who turns out to be a notorious jewel thief. Jean Hersholt lends naturalness and sympathy to his part as a friendly physician. Other players include Neil Hamilton and Marie Prevost.

The picture is based on the stage play, "Lullaby" and its action takes place in France. Incidentally, it marks Miss Hayes' screen debut, bringing from the Broadway stage another great actress.

We Now Present

By Darrell V. Martin
Radio Editor

THE GOBLINS AND the witches have little to do with radio programs tonight and it is just as well considering that we have the pleasure of hearing once again John Philip Sousa and His Band, the Revelers also in a new feature on WCAE at 9 o'clock. This semi-weekly series is to present Sousa's Band every Tuesday at 8:30 and Arthur Pryor's Band every Saturday at 9, hereafter. Tonight the dean of bandleaders has chosen a diversified program including Bucalossi's "Hunting Scene," "The Whistler and His Dog" and exhilarating march from "Carmen." . . . Baby Rose Marie appears as special guest artist with Aileen Clark and Ed O'Brien sings "Sylvia" for WCAE fans at 9:30 . . . Columbia's salute extraordinary for WGN, the new Chicago outlet, is booked for WJAS at 9:30 . . . B. A. Rolfe leaves the air after six years' work, presenting his farewell dance program on WCAE at 10.

Darrell V. Martin

Question a Day:

What individual entertainer has been on the air the longest time?—Ralph W. Punxsutawney.

Answer—We believe the honor would go to Phil Cook, who has been broadcasting nearly nine years. In Pittsburgh we have several artists who have broadcast since pioneer days or approximately 11 years.

The cream of NBC and CBS will be heard on KDKA, WCAE and WJAS at 10:45 tomorrow night in a gala Unemployment Program . . . you will find your favorite entertainer in some part of the broadcast, we're sure.

NBC is to broadcast the flight of the Akron, world's largest dirigible, down the Atlantic Coast on Monday . . . announcers are to be stationed on the roof of the Lakehurst hangar, in the forward cabin of the dirigible and at points of vantage in Washington, New York and Philadelphia.

NBC is to be the biggest rent payer in Radio City . . . Its lease, just signed, calls for 12 floors of the main 66-story building . . . Included will be 27 broadcasting studios. . . .

Eighteen thousand of 25,000 letters received by Leopold Stokowski after his broadcast a few week ago, professed that they were first "fan" letters . . .

A pencil manufacturer learned that Mark Warnow always directs his CBS orchestra with a pencil instead of a baton . . . Forthwith sent Warnow a box of grade "A" pencils, inclosing this note:

"Would you be so kind, as a testimonial, to recommend our pencils to other orchestra leaders?"

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Enterprising of Columbia to bring to American ears returns of the British election. Such broadcasts help to keep alive the notion that radio fulfills its destiny most when it brings the big news of the day to the armchairs directly it has happened.

Most of the interest here centered in knowing how Ramsay was faring in the Seaham District, just how effective had been his dramatic appeal to the miners. And here were the broadcasters not asleep at the switch, actually telling us.

Politicians are getting more and more radio-conscious in America as 1932 begins to show her head. One of those most radio-conscious right now is Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland. A good speaker, Ritchie, and with a forthright, convincing manner.

Yet, there is no political speaker in America who can summon the fine dramatic fervor that is MacDonald's or even Lloyd George's. Each would have been a great actor on the stage. Each knows the art of suspense, the art of climax, and each is gifted with a beautiful voice.

So Damrosch is to conduct an hour of symphonic music on Sundays, seeking to compensate NBC for the absence on its roster regularly of the more famous symphony bands. Damrosch, of course, will be limited by the time at his disposal. He will be able only to give excerpts of the masters or at best their shorter pieces. The programs should add to the prestige of Sunday programs.

2 KIN ACCUSED BY ROXIE LONG

Harry Kelly, 26, and his wife, Artina, 23, of 5 Arthur street, were at liberty today on bail, following their arrest yesterday on charges of conspiracy to indict, slander and perjury.

The charges were made before Justice of the Peace John M. O'Rourke, of Broughton, by their brother-in-law, Rocco DePippo, known as Roxie Long.

Long caused the arrest of the couple after his release by county detectives, who had questioned him in connection with the murders of Jack Palmere and Sam (Toto) Amarosa.

Long charges Kelly and his wife informed detectives that he had knowledge concerning the murders. Long denied it.

Drug Agents Held On Dry Law Charge

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 31.—Three agents of a Pittsburgh manufacturing concern were arrested at Vestaburg for allegedly dispensing drugs and toilet articles of high alcoholic content.

The trio, John Savitch, 33; Merle Hughes, 22, and Mrs. V. J. McInerny, 32, all of Uniontown, were placed in jail for hearings next week before Squire Joe C. Rockett, Fredericktown. Police said they would be charged with violating the liquor laws.

FRANKLIN, Pa., Oct. 31.—Hunting conditions are ideal, and there is a generous supply of game, District Protector W. E. Clark has told newspapermen. Rush of hunters Monday is expected to set an all-time record.

Daily Short Story :: Doubly Dark

Lucy Harwood leaned her elbows on the stone coping which enclosed the garden of the Grove-Hagen penthouse and looked down 30 stories through the purplish dark at the far-flung, fallen stars that were the lights of New York City. Golden rockets flashed, marking the paths of elevated trains. Broadway sparkled and glittered. The clatter and roar and hum of traffic in the city which never sleeps came softly through the dark. With sudden discontent, Lucy wished that she might always be above the ugliness and unceasing struggle of everyday life. Then she shrugged. A visit to Cousin Rea's penthouse always made her feel like this!

For though Lucy was young, beautiful and ambitious, she was merely a second cousin, a poor relation of Rea Grove-Hagen, who had fortuitously married John Grove-Hagen 10 years ago. Lucy was a stenographer, and only an occasional visitor to Rea's exquisite home. Baby Harl was devoted to her, however, and this afternoon Cousin Rea had phoned and asked as a special favor that she come at once and stay until Sunday.

"Harl is just over the measles, and is still cross and irritable," she said, in a nervous, high-pitched voice. "His nurse Anna is half sick, and I do believe is coming down with the same thing. If you can help me out tonight, Lucy, I'll send the car for you right away."

So the poor relation laid aside her plans for the week-end and obediently went to play nursemaid. She didn't know until she arrived that they were giving a big dinner that night for a Russian actress. But it didn't matter. She spent the evening with baby Harl, and now she had come out to the deserted garden for a breath of air. It must be wonderful to be rich, she thought and sighed.

MARVELOUS VIEW

The moon was rising, and she stood watching it. . . Presently she felt that someone was watching her—she turned quickly and was face to face with a tall young man.

"Excuse me," he said, stepping back.

"Pardon me." She started to brush past him.

"I was looking at the moon," he stated hurriedly, obviously to detain her. "Isn't it beautiful?"

"The view—down yonder—is more marvelous," she answered.

He nodded. "Man's conquest of nature."

By mutual consent they turned and leaned elbow to elbow on the coping. She wondered, between amusement and anger, how long the young man had been staring at her. He had left the drawing room, she supposed, bored by his fellow guests, and now was finding diversion talking about the moon to a nursemaid. Oh, well, she needn't hurry inside. His voice was marvelous, and his nose . . .

The course of a life can be changed in the ticking of a second. If Lucy had hurried back to sleeping Harl, and left the fascinating stranger—but she didn't. Instead, she lingered with him in the dusky, fragrant garden for a long half-hour. He had evidently forgotten the distinguished assembly in the drawing rooms, and she was conscious only of his nearness, of his voice answering hers.

With a start she realized how late it was. "I must go in," she declared. "Goodnight."

She dreamed of him all night, and sighed when she awakened to think that she would never see him again. What was her surprise then, to find him at the breakfast table when she appeared. The Grove-Hagens were still abed.

"Good morning, early bird," he greeted her.

"Good morning, worm," she answered. Then, since she had never before eaten vis-a-vis with a millionaire, she remained self-consciously silent; and he had nothing to say, either. She wished drearily that there were not a social gulf between them. If he were a man of her own class, poor but ambitious and with a degree of culture, she could so easily love him. But the thought was absurd. She rose abruptly.

"I'm leaving in a few minutes. I've enjoyed talking to you," she said, politely.

And that was that. But no, he was waiting at the lift when she reappeared and followed her out to the car.

"I don't suppose I shall see you again," he questioned.

A feeling of bitter revolt against conventions rose in Lucy. If a man and a woman were attracted to each other, why should money, or lack of it, keep them apart?

Do you want to? she countered daringly.

His eyes met hers. He was hesitating—debating—she felt, hot color mounting to her cheeks. Oh, she had been mistaken in thinking he cared for her!

ARRIVES HOME

"You know I want to see you again," he answered almost rudely. "May I call tonight?"

"Yes," she nodded.

Joel took her arm, helped her into the car, then jumped in beside her. "I'll ride along as you do," he said, suddenly jubilant, "and find out where you live."

"I admire masterfulness," she answered, smiling.

"And I admire you."

Almost immediately it seemed to Lucy the car stopped before the ordinary, three-story, six-family apartment which was her home.

"I'll expect you tonight," she said, brightly, extending her hand.

He was blinking with ill-concealed surprise. "You don't live—here?" he asked. "I mean—that is——" he stopped.

"Why shouldn't I?" she retorted, and in a flash of understanding answered her own question. "Surely you didn't think I was a millionaire debutante just because——" she paused.

"What else could I think?" he answered, almost indignantly.

And she had had on an old, sleeveless net dress the night before!

"I'm sorry to undeceive you," she spoke gravely, "but I'm only a poor relation of Mrs. Grove-Hagen. That's why I wasn't sure you wanted to continue our acquaintance."

"Caesar's ghost! Why, Lucy, I'm merely a clerk in Mr. Grove-Hagen's brokerage office. I was there finishing some important rush work for him." He paused and laughed. "I didn't suppose a debutante would condescend to a clerk—except in the moonlight."

Her laugh echoed his. "A Comedy of Errors," she cried. "Come in, and let's get acquainted all over again."

"I'd like to take you out to dinner—may I?"

"There's plenty of time to decide that," she answered, cheerfully, as she led the way upstairs.

In her heart she was thinking that there wouldn't be much time wasted before they made a more important decision. The irresistible force that had brought them together would see to that.

SIX-HOUR DAY AIDS KELLOGG EFFICIENCY

Big Battle Creek Concern Operating at Record Rate; 20 More Employed

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Oct. 31.—(AP.)—With plant operations speeded by the adoption of the six hour day, the Kellogg Company is moving through what its officials say is the greatest year in its history while 20 per cent more workers have been given employment than at the same time a year ago.

The increase in employment has been made possible through the six-hour day plant projects undertaken this fall to meet civic needs and strategic newspaper advertising which company executives say is chiefly responsible for the record of the current year that has brought the company the largest volume of business in its history.

Adopted nearly a year ago to meet employment needs the six-hour day has proved an economical investment for the company as well as of benefit to the employes it was stated.

WAGE RATE BASE RAISED

With the shorter day the number of shifts was increased from three to four and wages were adjusted so that the majority of workers can earn the equivalent of the scale of the eight-hour shift. The readjustment involved an increase in the base rate of wages averaging 12½ per cent, fixing the minimum wage at $4 a day.

The plan, officials of the company say, has resulted in an immediate increase in efficiency. Less fatigue among the workers has eliminated a tendency toward carelessness and waste toward the end of the working shift and the elimination of the meal periods and increased daily production of the plant as a unit have contributed to the success of the experiment.

ADVERTISING AIDS

Of the importance of newspaper advertising in the company's policy of meeting the challenge of the times W. K. Kellogg, founder and president of the company, said:

"Last year demonstrated some of the unusual virtues of newspaper advertising. We used newspapers somewhat as shock troops to concentrate our fire when and where needed. The mobility of this form of advertising has enabled us to meet the varying problems of unsettled conditions to excellent advantage."

This year the company is spending even more on newspaper advertising than in 1930 in which the advertising budget was the largest in the company's history.

A few weeks ago when the development was announced of a new machine which would have placed about 100 workers and netted a considerable saving in rating costs Kellogg refused to let it installed. He said:

This is no time to displace workers."

SHIPPING BOARD SIGN CONTRACT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—A contract calling for reorganization of the U. S. Lines has been signed by the U. S. Shipping Board and the U. S. Lines Company of Nevada. The company was organized by Dollar, Dawson & Roosevelt Steamship interests.

The Shipping Board gets about $2,170,000 for its mortgages held against the line. In addition the new company has to put up $3,500,000 cash, about $2,500,000 of which represents payments on the two 30,000-ton liners being built at Camden. The remainder is to be used as operating expenses.

In addition the new company will have to post guarantees of $2,500,000 to be used for operating expenses in case it is needed. The preferred stockholders in the old U. S. Lines will be taken care of by an exchange of share-for-share of junior preferred in the new company. Details of the part each interest will play in the new organization will be made public in New York.

Crafton Children Give Class Fund To Aid Needy

Doing their share to aid needy children, 18 little members of the beginners' class of the First Presbyterian Church of Crafton Sunday School today were donating the class fund of $8 to Gov. Pinchot's milk fund. The fund has been accumulating during the past year, each child contributing on his or her birthday. Mrs. W. H. Wentzel is superintendent of the school.

FARM PRODUCTS GOING UP

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—(AP.)—If recent gains are held, the Agriculture Department's index of farm prices probably will reverse the field and start toward higher levels next month.

Increases of approximately 13 cents a bushel for wheat and 1½ cents a pound for cotton came too late to be recorded in this month's index, which on October 15 stood at 68. A year ago it was 106.

On October 15 the farm wheat price was 38.1 cents, as compared with 35.7 in September and 35.4 in August. Dairy and poultry products, the best situated of all agricultural lines, continued to advance, rising from an average of 93 to 99.

Millions of dollars have been added in the last two weeks to the farm value of wheat and cotton. If half of the 1931 wheat crop still remains on farms, its value has been enhanced by more than $50,000,000. Market estimates have placed the gain in cotton at more than $50,000,000.

These encouraging factors, however, have been somewhat tempered by further recessions in live stock, fruit and vegetable prices.

BRITISH COTTON TRADE BOOMS

MANCHESTER, Eng., Oct. 31.—(AP.)—The cotton industry appears to be enjoying a temporary boom attributed in part to orders placed by domestic merchants in order to take advantage of low prices occasioned by the drop in the pound.

Lancashire's spinning mills have been running at approximately 75 per cent capacity for the past month, it was learned authoritatively, as compared with a low record of 42 per cent established in August. The re-entry of China as a cotton buyer and increases buying in other eastern markets, excluding India, also are listed as causes.

The stocks of English retailers are reported to be low as a result of the summer's watchful waiting. Whether the boom is merely temporary or a sign of the recovery of the industry cannot be determined from one month's figures, but it is known that Lancashire contributed a big share to recent reductions in British unemployment figures.

Loew's Inc. May Declare $1 Extra Dividend In December

Reports have been revived that directors of Loew's, Inc., may declare an extra dividend of $1 a share on the stock at the meeting in December. It is argued that such action would be justified if the earnings for the year ended August 31 last came up to the estimates which have been heard in the financial district in the past. It is still predicted in many quarters that better than $7 a share was earned in the period.

That many of the favorable comments which have been heard on Penick and Ford in the past were warranted, seems indicated by the action of the directors in declaring an extra dividend of 50 cents a share at this time. This additional distribution aroused considerable comment around Wall Street, which has heard so many doubts expressed evan as to maintenance of dividends that have already been reduced.

Speculative buying of Electric Auto-Lite has been recommended by one of the commission houses on the theory that with the current $4 dividend the yield on the stock is in excess of 13 per cent and a good return would be obtainable even if a reduction in the rate was necessary. There has been no talk of a dividend cut on the stock, mainly because earnings for the nine months amounted to $3.95 a share, so that the current distribution will be covered in the fiscal year. The company in the future should derive benefits from greater diversification of products.

Usually well-informed reports indicate that news of a constructive character will shortly be forthcoming on the railroad situation. It is believed that the Interstate Commerce Commission will look upon with favor the plan of the carriers to loan the benefits of the increased rates to weaker systems rather than give the funds, such as was originally decided upon by the Interstate Commerce Commission. In the belief that this plan will shortly be put into effect, a statistical service has estimated the increase in per share earnings of leading roads, assuming that the freight rate increase proposal was in effect throughout 1931. Atchison would receive net of $2.24 a common share; Baltimore and Ohio, $2.22; Chesapeak and Ohio, 52 cents; Rock Island, $2.86; Illinois Central, $2.02; New York Central, $2.03; Nickel Plate, $4.15; New Haven, $1.39; Pennsylvania, 99 cents, and Union Pacific, $1.73.

Current strength in Paramount-Publix is reported based on buying in anticipation of a favorable showing by the third quarter statement which is expected to be made public shortly. Current estimates place net at the equivalent of around 50 cents a share on the stock, which would bring net for the first nine months to a figure equivalent to about $2.33 a share. Reports going the rounds has it that some important changes in its affairs are in the making, which will result in holders of substantial blocks of the stock, reputedly Chicago interests, securing representation on its board.

The South Porto Rico Sugar Company will soon make public its annual report covering the fiscal year ended September 30, last. Earnings, it is understood will be shown to have fallen somewhat under those of the preceding year, but the balance sheet, it is contended, will show a substantial improved cash position. Inasmuch as the company retired some $2,000,000 bonds in the interval, it is believed that improved cash position was brought about through the medium of sharp reductions in inventories.

JAPAN STUDIES RED STRATEGY

TOKIO, Oct. 31.—(INS.)—Reports of Russian military activities along the border between Manchuria and Soviet soil were studied here today with close attention by Japanese officials and the public.

One of these dispatches placed 6,000 Red troops at Pogranichnaya, eastern terminus of the Chinese Eastern Railway, which is jointly operated by China and Russia. Another stated Russia's Far Eastern army is preparing for action.

Unofficial Russian explanations that Russian troop movements are designed to forestall possible aggressive moves by White Russian forces met with a sceptical reception here, despite Moscow's avowed neutrality in the Sino-Japanese dispute over Manchuria.

Film Firms Merge Studio Facilities

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(INS.)—A merger of the studio facilities of the R. K. O. Radio Pictures, Inc., and R. K. O. Pathe, Inc., to take effect immediately, was announced here today by Hiram S. Brown, chairman of the board of both companies.

Under the new arrangement the various production assets of the two companies will be available for the mutual advantage of both. David O. Selznick has been signed as executive vice president.

STOCK MARKET STRONG AND ACTIVE

Rails, Steels, Tobaccos And Food Shares Show Gains in Early Trading

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP.)—The share market was active and strong in the initial transactions today. Rails, steels, tobaccos and food shares, were generally higher. American Tobacco B rose 1½ points, and issues up ½ to 1 point included United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chesapeake and Ohio, New York Central, Reynolds Tobacco B, Liggett and Myers B, General Electric, Consolidated Gas, National Dairy and Gold dust.

Repayment by the Bank of England of two-fifths of the $250,000,000 credit granted it last August by the Federal Reserve Bank and the Bank of France created a most favorable impression in local banking circles, which regarded the transaction as something of a feat. It had been expected that the entire credit would be renewed, but the balance now being extended for another three-months period is $150,000,000.

Wall street brokerage houses are paying considerable attention to the wheat market, which has responded so vigorously to substantial European purchases. Grains, generally speaking, have moved against the trend of securities in the last fortnight or so, and some brokers feel that stocks and bonds will be helped by this strength in staples.

Weakness of foreign exchanges against the dollar is said to reflect in part short covering in dollars, stimulated by the stronger banking situation here. The French franc has been particularly heavy, easing below the point at which gold might profitably be shipped from New York to France. Sterling softened again today, opening at $3.84¼, off 2¼ cents.

Hertz Accepts Post Offered by Zukor

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(INS.)—John Hertz, Chicago banker, and former head of the Yellow Cab Company; William Wrigley, Jr., owner of the Chicago National League Baseball Club, and Albert D. Lasker, former chairman of the United States Shipping Board, are to be elected to the board of directors of the Paramount Publix Corporation, it was announced today.

Adolph Zukor, president of the corporation, said Hertz had been invited to become chairman of the finance committee of his organization and had accepted.

Armour Subsidiary Reduces Capital

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—The capital stock of North American Provision Company, wholly-owned subsidiary of Armour & Co., has been cut, by reducing common stock to $1,000,000 and cancellation of $6,115,000 of 6 per cent preferred stock.

Pittsburgh Steel Elects Banker

Theodore W. Friend, president of the Chartiers Trust Company and First National Bank of McKees Rocks, has been elected a director of Pittsburgh Steel Company.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

WINDOW GLASS DEMAND WELL SUSTAINED

Wage Dispute Settlement Pends; Walkout Reported Scheduled for Tonight

Pending the settlement of the wage controversy between manufacturers and unionized cutters, the rather well sustained demand for window glass which has developed since October 5 is featuring the flat glass industry, American Glass Review reports. The demand is such as to leave no doubt that October shipments will exceed production.

Manufacturers aside from their interest in the wage question are pleased with the market for window glass although prices continue to average below the cost of production. Although September sales exceeded August the increase was far below the seasonal expectation. While the present tone of demand is strong as compared with any month since early spring, it is now below the average of the past 10 years. Production also is low, but it is believed demand can be taken care of because of the stocks carried into October.

NOVEMBER UNCERTAIN

What will happen in November? That is the question for the window glass manufacturers. Whether demand will continue on or near present levels through the month in accordance with past experiences or whether it will decline toward the early winter slump is hard to determine. Distributors and large users are buying only as requirements dictate and if consumption should continue demand on factories ought to be comparatively good.

Plate glass production is down in step with demand. Jobbers are buying plate glass in somewhat larger quantities but it is not expected the plate glass demand will increase greatly until automobile manufacturers get into larger production than at present.

WALKOUT LOOMS

Possibility of a walkout of the organized cutters loomed large as the expiration date of the present scale, October 31 at midnight, came nearer. Many reports were heard during the week regarding a meeting of the manufacturers and representatives of the Window Glass Cutters' League, which means all unionized window glass factories except those of the American Window Glass Company. It was made known, however, that the Cutters' League had requested no meeting and that the manufacturers had made no move toward a conference.

HOLLIS FAVORS INCINERATION

Many builders and home owners are installing incinerators for the burning of rubbish and garbage in the home, according to Harry E. Hollis, manager of the Pittsburgh Incinerator Company. Mr. Hollis states that the incinerator eliminates the danger of fire and the menace to health entailed in present municipal methods of collection and disposal of garbage.

Mr. Hollis recently represented his firm at the annual convention of the American Gas Association at Atlantic City, N. J., where it was reported that the use of household incinerators is rapidly gaining throughout the country.

SEPTEMBER OIL OUTPUT OFF

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—(AP.)—Daily average production of crude petroleum in the United States dropped to the lowest point in more than five years during September.

The Bureau of Mines said that in September a daily average of 2,121,000 barrels were produced for a total of 63,636,000 barrels.

The daily production represented a decline of 86,000 barrels from the average of the previous month and 253,000 barrels below the output of a year ago.

Practically all of the decline in output in September resulted from the shutdown of the East Texas field.

STEEL INGOT OUTPUT UP FOR WEEK

Further Increase Expected In Coming Week; Seasonal Trend May Be Reversed

By B. E. V. LUTY

Steel ingot production increased this week, making the first definite rise since the large seasonal increase in the first three months of the year. Production may be estimated at fully 27 per cent, against 26 per cent last week, 27 per cent the week before, and a steady gait of 28 per cent in September. Expectations are that increases will continue for some time although there may be the usual drop in the last two or three weeks of the year.

The Pittsburgh district accounted for the greater part of this week's increase and will have a further increase next week when Edgar Thomson resumes. The steel department has had only occasional operation in the last six months. Two blast furnaces, banked seven weeks ago, will resume. On the coming run the steel plant will make at least a portion of the 4,000 tons of rails allocated Carnegie in the recent Chesapeak and Ohio buying, rails on releases under old contracts by other roads, track material and sheet bars. The Chicago district is still reported producing ingots at 25 per cent.

FARM BUYING UP

Rail production is thus to increase, the farm implement industry has been increasing its purchases in the last three weeks and has a program of further increase, tin plate mills have begun producing on anticipations of next season's requirements, and it is common belief October has been the low month in automobile production. Whether the automobile increase will be more marked in November or December is uncertain.

With these definite increases in steel requirements at hand confidence is expressed that total steel production will increase markedly in the next two months, countering the usual seasonal decline and leaving October as the low month of the year. Nearly all the consuming lines which have usually shown seasonal decreases are believed to have been thoroughly shaken down already.

It would require larger increases than are now in prospect to raise the present quarter's steel production to the third quarter total, for production was at 34 per cent in July, 31 per cent in August and 28 per cent in September, making 31 per cent average, while the fourth quarter is handicapped by October having been around 27 per cent.

STRIP PRICES DROP

Finished steel prices have shown no decline since June until this week, when strips in large lots slipped $1 a ton on hot rolled and $2 on cold rolled, the former levels continuing on small lots, including carloads. The market had been showing signs of an outright decline, as reported a week ago. No other weakness is apparent in finished steel prices.

In recent months there has been talk of attempts to advance steel prices, particularly for the first quarter of the new year, but this now seems unlikely with the possible exception of wire products. What the mills need is tonnage. Third quarter earnings statements are showing substantial drafts on surplus, but these are chiefly for depreciation, absolescence, depletion and dividends, and with so light an operation earning of such charges could hardly be expected.

Passenger Service to Be Stopped by Road Today

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE PITTSBURGH AND WEST Virginia Railway Company will discontinue passenger service tonight. As a result of this it will save itself about $70,000 a month.

Because of its short line and the territory served the Pittsburgh and West Virginia is essentially a freight carrier and cannot operate the passenger end of its business at a profit even under active business conditions. The proposed sale of its bridge and tunnel to Allegheny County will eliminate the road's city terminal and gave the line a good opportunity to ask for permission to abandon its passenger service.

The importance of a saving of this magnitude is particularly great at the present time since the low rate of coal mine activity along the line has been responsible for a sharp drop in traffic. In September a net loss of $47,723 was reported after taxes and all charges. Elimination of passenger traffic would have transformed this loss into a small profit. In September of last year a net income of $109,047 was reported.

As a result of the sharp decline in its coal traffic and the increased interest charges for indebtedness acquired to finance the extension of the line to Connellsville; the road has been reporting losses for several months. Net income for the first nine months of 1931 was $93,884, equivalent to 31 cents a share on 302,351 shares of capital stock. This compared with $1,198,196 or $3.96 a share in the first nine months of 1930.

Pittsburgh Terminal Coal

INCREASED DEFICITS SHOWN by the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation make the guarantee of the company's bonds by the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway important. Pittsburgh Terminal's loss for the third quarter was $223,161 compared with a loss of $116,204 in September a year ago.

Unfavorable conditions in the coal industry have been the chief contributing influence to losses shown by this company for several years. Until the present year, however, profits were usually reported before depreciation and depletion charges so that working capital was not being impaired except by expenditures for plant improvements. In the third quarter a deficit of $27,622 was reported before depreciation and depletion so that the company is now cutting into its working capital.

Position Not Strong

THE PITTSBURGH TERMINAL Coal Company formerly was a subsidiary of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway. Upon the segregation, the railroad guaranteed principal and interest on the Pittsburgh Terminal Railroad and Coal Company 5 per cent bonds due in 1942. The bonds are a direct obligation of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company. A sinking fund of 8 cents for every ton of coal mined has not been fully maintained. At the close of 1930 $2,666,000 of the bonds remained outstanding.

The balance sheet of the coal company at the end of 1930 showed current assets of $864,634 against current liabilities of $328,762. While this ratio is satisfactory, only $94,714 of the current assets were in cash while $678,508 were in accounts receivable.

If the coal business continues in its present state for a long period, it is conceivable that the guarantee of the bonds by the railroad may be of importance.

Germany's Wool Imports Increase

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Imports of wool into Germany during the first eight months of 1931 amounted to 277,000,000 pounds, or about 14,000,000 pounds above imports during the corresponding period of 1930, according to Department of Agriculture. Exports of washed wool for the eight months of this year totaled 8,760,000 pounds, or 350,000 pounds above the first eight months of last year.

No Bonds Offered By Firms in Week

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—There were no new corporate bond offerings this week. Last week the offerings totaled $20,625,000, and in the corresponding period last year the total was $17,643,000.

Brazil Won't Sell Coffee to Russia

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Oct. 31.—(AP.)—Negotiations between Soviet Russia and Brazil for the sale of 500,000 sacks of coffee failed today because of the Brazilian Coffee Institute's fear that the Soviets would dump their purchase on European markets.

Negotiations were started in July with the institute proposing to sell coffee cheaply to Russia for advertising purposes.

East Texas Crude Production Gains

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 31.—Twenty new wells in the East Texas oil field have brought the total number of producers to 2,622. Field production is 437,019 barrels and pipe line runs 443,660 barrels.

BEST MANAGERS FORGE AHEAD IN SLUMP

Some Refuse to Join Gloom Chorus; Head of Grant Stores Offers Example

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Oct. 31. — The stock market is perpetually subject to excesses because in bear markets the public closes its mind to favorable developments, just as in bull markets it throws all bad news into the waste basket. In the present temper of the public, there is too much disposition to focus attention on contemporary failures, too little disposition to seek out current successes.

Management everywhere has not failed to adjust itself to changing conditions. Among the heads of corporations there have been some who have gallantly bucked the trend, and industriously sawed wood while routineers indulged in emotional extravagances about hard times.

Mr. Rukeyser

There have been a number of examples of good management in the merchandising field. I asked B. A. Rowe, president of the far-flung W. T. Grant chain store organization, which has kept up its volume and profits, to tell me his business plans for the coming months. He said:

"We believe that improvement in business is largely dependent on the confidence in the future that is shown by individuals and business organizations. The W. T. Grant Company has confidence that business will be better in the next six months than in the same period last year, and is laying plans accordingly.

"We propose to open about 30 new stores in addition to the 400 now in our company, and to remodel some old stores at an estimated expenditure of about $3,000,000, largely in the East, South and Middle West.

HUGE EXPENDITURE

"We expect to spend well over a million dollars in construction work in the next six months. About one-half of this amount, or $500,000, will be a direct addition to the payrolls of the communities where the new stores are installed, for the services of building mechanics.

"The other half, or $500,000, will be paid out for building materials, such as steel, lumber, plaster, electric wiring and the like, and it is estimated that three-fourths of this sum will swell the payrolls in the communities where the commodities are manufactured.

"To fit up these new stores with counters, shelves, glassware, lighting globes and reflectors, office equipment and other fixtures, will require an estimated expenditure of close to $600,000 and the services of many men.

"Our normal purchases of merchandise, in the next six months, will amount to over $55,000,000 in cotton goods, rayon, toilet articles, housewares and the numerous other articles carried. In addition to that we will purchase about $1,000,000 worth of merchandise from our manufacturers as the initial orders to open up these 30 new outlets for their products."

The Scarf—A Favorite

Pattern 2194

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

STEP-BY-STEP INSTRUCTION DIAGRAMS GIVEN WITH THIS PATTERN

By ANNE ADAMS

No other style feature has been given such acclaim as the scarf in every one of its variations. On this model it starts at the left as a softly gathered collar, and at the right pulls through a slot in the bodice. Four buttons hold the scarf smartly in place. Another important detail is the curved skirt godet, repeated in back. This frock makes up beautifully in velvet, satin, canton crepe or sheer wool, the scarf of satin in contrasting color.

Pattern 2194 is obtainable only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3⅞ yards of 39-inch fabric, 1 yard contrasting. No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern.

WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP.)—Bank clearings are again greatly reduced. The total this week at all leading cities in the United States, as reported to Dun's Review, of $5,497,168,000 was 31.3 per cent below that of the same week last year. At New York City the amount was $3,670,099,000, a reduction of 30.8 per cent.

It is necessary to go back to the last week of August to find an amount nearly so low as that shown for the final week of October. Furthermore, August bank clearings customarily are at the low point of the year. It seems arpparent that certain extraneous circumstances present at this time are accountable for a part of the loss in bank clearings.

Bank clearings this week, as reported to R. G. Dun & Co., showing decreases as compared with same period a year ago follow (totals in thousands):

81 COACHES TEACH NOTRE DAME STYLE

CARRYING ON FOR Knute Rockne against Carnegie Tech here today, Hunk Anderson is only one of a small army of football coaches keeping up the work of the late gridiron genius. It is not only at Notre Dame that the teachings of the great Norwegian are being continued. His pigskin doctrine has been spread all over the country, and the famous system demonstrated at the Stadium this afternoon by the university that is its fountain-head is being taught at 32 other institutions.

Hunk Anderson

The Notre Dame style of play as perfected by Rockne is now used also by Duquesne, St. Vincent, Navy, Georgetown, Purdue, Villanova, Washington, Florida, St. Mary's, Detroit, Georgia, Catholic U., Michigan State, North Carolina, North Carolina State, Wichita, Santa Clara, Loyola of California, St. Louis, St. Xavier of Cincinnati, Alabama, Alabama Poly, New Mexico, Rice, Manhattan, South Dakota State, Canisius, Howard, Dayton, De LaSalle of Philadelphia, De LaSalle of Chicago,, St. John's of Collegeville, Minn., Mt. St. Charles, St. Xavier of Louisville, DePaul, St. Andelam and Des Moines Central.

BESIDES MANY NOTRE Dame men are assistant coaches at other colleges where the Rockne system is not used exclusively. There are Adam Walsh and Bucky O'Connor at Yale, Marty Brill at Columbia, Don Miller at Ohio State, Larry Mullins at Kansas, Jack Cannon at Georgia Tech, Elmer Wynne at Colorado School of Mines, Tom Cassis at Colorado, Tom Kenneally at Rutgers and John McMannmon at Boston College. No fewer than 81 former South Bend players are head coaches or assistants.

At Notre Dame itself things have been carried on this year strictly along the lines established by Rockne. This applies even to the outfitting of the players. The only change from last season is the adoption of green criss-cross stripes on the headgears to conform to the new rule which stipulates that equipment shall not be of the same color as the ball.

SPEAKING OF OUTFITTING the players, it takes an amazing lot of paraphernalia and costs a pretty penny to equip numerous gridders at the South Bend school each year.

And the handling of it constitutes one of the biggest jobs in football for Anthony Schreiner, custodian of equipment for the Irish, and the man mainly responsible for the nifty appearance of the team on the field.

SCHREINER HAD TO outfit some 450 football men this fall, taking care of the varsity, freshman and interhall players. Each varsity man has three jerseys, three pairs of shoes, two pairs of pants and two pairs of stockings. Two of the jerseys are blue—one being for practice and one for games—and the other is green. One of the three pairs of shoes is for practice and the others are for games—one pair for a dry and one for a wet field. Of the stockings, one pair is blue and the other green. The "hamburger" or reserve teams are equipped each week with a different set of jerseys of the color to be worn by the varsity's next opponents. The university laundry cleans all equipment, and the players never handle their own suits on trips. They merely leave their lockers open before leaving, their outfits are checked for missing pieces, packed, and then laid out just before the game. Everything is back in the lockers on Monday, ready for the beginning of another week.

Ernie Nevers

MIKE THOMPSON, veteran football official, is a close friend of Pop Warner and picks the former Pitt mentor as all-time coach, but he disagrees with Warner on one point. Pop says Ernie Nevers, former Stanford fullback, was greater than Jim Thorpe. Thompson concedes only that Nevers was the greatest SINCE Thorpe.

In connection with this dispute, another vote for Thorpe comes from Chief Gardner, one of the famous all-time Carlisle Indian ends, who held down a terminal berth from 1904 to 1907 while Albert Exendine was playing the other wing. Gardner, now a practicing lawyer in Los Angeles, says Nevers did not see the day when he could touch Thorpe as a great football player.

THOUGH TODAY'S MEETING is their thirty-fourth on the gridiron, football isn't the only sport in which competition between Pitt and Penn State dates far back. The Panthers met the Lions in baseball a greater number of times than any other college except Dickinson. The latter has played 38 baseball games with State, and Pitt is second on the Mt. Nittany list with 31 games.

Baseball is included with track and cross-country among the sports in which State holds an edge over Pitt. The Lions won 19 games against 12 for the Panthers. The last four games, two in 1923 and two in 1924, went to Pitt, after which the latter dropped the sport.

THE POPULARITY OF night football in Pittsburgh was attested again during the 1931 floodlight season which the Dukes wound up at Forbes Field last night by taking a 20-to-12 defeat from Catholic U. Unfavorable weather kept down the attendance on a couple of occasions, but the crowds on the whole were of proportions that showed the night sport is popular and is here to stay. The Bluff boys won only two night contests while losing two and tying two, but at least they're scoring again after three straight blanks, and that's an encouraging sign with the hard Holy Cross, North Dakota and Howard games just ahead.

REPORTING A NEW low in fistic business affairs and in the using of a boxer for a meal ticket, New York advices suggest that times sure must be hard in the sock market when a manager will go so far as to get his fighter a job and then cut into the battler's wages for his managerial slice of 33 1-3 per cent.

Eddie Walker, who manages Eddie Benson, a fair heavyweight, has been unable to line up any fights for his man lately in the East. So, the story goes, Walker, out of the kindness of his heart, got Benson a job as chauffeur at $10 a day and now clips him for $3.33 a day as his bit.

Otis Crandall

THE REAPPOINTMENT OF Otis Crandall as one of the Pirate coaches means something from another angle. It eliminates one of the numerous men who have been reported as possibilities for the local managerial post.

Crandall, like several thousand others, was rumored as having a chance to succeed Jewel Ens, but the action of President Dreyfuss in signing the veteran to coach again would appear to indicate that Otis has not been considered for the bigger job.

THE WISDOM OF bringing Crandall back as coach of the pitchers for next year is not to be questioned. Old Doc was one of the most valuable men in the Pirate outfit last season. There is no smarter slab tutor in the business, and the improvement he wrought in the local mound staff, by teaching a curve here and a change of pace there, was such that if the club's work in other departments had been as good as the pitching the Bucs would have finished considerably higher.

PENN STATERS AT BEST FOR PANTHERS

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 31. — Grimly facing heavy odds, Penn State's four times defeated team awaits the invasion of the Pittsburgh Panthers on Beaver Field this afternoon, in the thirty-fourth game between the two institutions and the first on this field since 1902. Even the most optimistic of Penn State graduates, here for the annual alumni homecoming, scarcely expect the Lion team to do more than hold down the score on Pitt, but they do expect to see Bob Higgins' charges show their best form of the season this afternoon.

In their five previous starts, only one of which resulted in a victory, the Lions have looked best when the opposition is the stiffest, particularly against Temple and Syracuse. In both of these games the Lions were figured to be snowed under by stronger opposition, but in each case the team displayed remarkable defensive power and stopped all except a few assaults on its line.

With this in mind, Penn State followers are hoping that the Lions will rise to new heights and spring a surprise on the Panthers, who are accounted as good as in with the contest. The shift to the State College field, after many years of reverses in Pittsburgh, will be a distinct psychological advantage for the Lions. The seemingly unbeatable jinx, which fastened itself on the State team after the 1921 game, will be replaced by the knowledge that Pitt has never beaten the Lions on this field.

Slusser was promoted to the first team this week, replacing Grimshaw at left end; he aggravated an ankle injury early in the week and had to rest up for a day or two, but is back in harness now.

The Pitt party arrived late yesterday afternoon and established itself in the Nittany Lion Inn, adjacent to the field and the gymnasium. The Panthers passed up the opportunity to practice on the local field and will take the field this afternoon with their last workout in the Pitt Stadium as the final tuning up. The probable starting lineup:

Penn State		Pittsburgh
Slusser	L. E.	(C.) Hirsberg

KISKI DEFEATS TECH PLEBES

SALTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 31. — Kiski defeated the Carnegie Tech Plebes, 27-12, here yesterday afternoon. Kiski employed straight line plays and end runs for three of their four touchdowns, and Pincura and Baker varied the attack by putting over one through the air, Baker making the catch.

Mihm, Tech's fullback, crashed over for the first Carnegie touchdown in the first period, and the second, in the third period, came from a pretty pass, Spisak to Carlson. Spisak stood out for the Tartan freshmen. The lineup:

Carnegie 12		Kiski 27
Berg	L. E.	Baker
Plummer	L. T.	Schell
Anderson	L. G.	Rumbaugh
J. Moncrit	C.	Brandon
Mertz	R. G.	Weibel

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE COLLEGE PRESIDENT WHO NEVER WENT TO COLLEGE—Walter Williams, new president of the University of Missouri, and founder and dean of its school of journalism—which is the first in the world—never went to college in his life. He was 15 when he quit school ot take a job as a printer's devil on the Boonville (Mo.) Topic at 70 cents a week. In 1908, he persuaded the university to let him set up an experimental school and he has been its dean ever since, and finally has won his way to the presidency of the institution.

TOMORROW—THE MOST STUPENDOUS DEATH WARRANT IN HISTORY.

DISTRICT TEAMS SEE ACTION

Traditional rivals will clash today in the Grove City-Allegheny football game at Grove City, which will feature the Crimson homecoming day. While Allegheny reigns the favorite, the contest is certain to produce the usual thrills of the annual fall meeting of the rivals, and the Grover squad is in exactly the right mental state to cause an upset.

The undefeated Waynesburg College team will close its home season by meeting Westminster College, of New Wilmington, in a tri-state conference clash.

Although the records of their past performances make Waynesburg a favorite against the Titans, ravages an epidemic of influenza among the Yellow Jacket performers will offset any advantage they may have held, and the two teams will enter the game on practically even terms.

St. Vincent College hooks up with the Thiel eleven at Greenville, Pa., in their last game away from home. Both teams will be out to keep their winning streaks intact and judging from their play in last Saturday's games, a stiff contest may be expected.

St. Vincent will be out to register its third straight and fourth victory of the season and will present its strongest array.

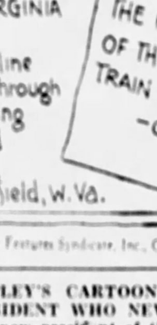
Sport Vignettes

The most glamorous team in American football is in our midst again today . . . Notre Dame, of course . . . Going against our Carnegie Tech hosts . . The picture is not complete without Knute Rockne, who literally Went West in an airplane shortly after his greatest season, last year . . But the famed Irish of South Bend are carrying on . . . And how they're carrying on will be attested by the Pitt eleven, which bowed to their might at South Bend just a week ago.



M. Schwartz

In meeting Carnegie once more, Notre Dame opposes an institution that has enjoyed signal success against its teams . . . Always rated the underdog, Carnegie has won in 1926 and in 1928, taking the latter game at South Bend, and, in 1924, it tossed a scare into the Irish by scoring 19 points in a tussle at Forbes Field, while Notre Dame won by only 7-0 at the Stadium two years ago . . . Howard Harpster, Carnegie's all-America quarterback, was the star of the Tartans' victories.

Last year, a veteran Carnegie team was rolling along apparently destined for one of the Plaid's greatest seasons until it ran afoul of the Irish thunderbolt at South Bend and bowed by a 21-6 score. After that its season was a shambles. This year's Tartan eleven contains many sophomore players. It figures to have no chance where a great Pitt team failed. But there are the memories of other upset achievements by Coach Wally Steffen's charges. And a fighting spirit may accomplish wonders. Who can say?

Recalling last year's Notre Dame-Carnegie game, which preceded the crushing defeat of Pitt at the Stadium, they tell a good story about Rockne and the Irish team that took the field against the Plaid . . . On the eve of the contest, Coach Rockne was a very much worried man . . . He thought he had lost his grip on his players because a young fellow named Carideo, his quarterback, appeared to have become a czar on the field and was taking matters pretty much into his own hands . . . Driving the players to the point of rebellion . . . Hated and at the same time feared by them . . . Rockne considered keeping him on the bench, fearing an uprising . . . But he sent him in and saw him push the team to great heights and a decisive victory . . . And repeat against Pitt and all of the other foes that followed . . . And never again did he doubt the wisdom of letting this young Mussolini run things as he saw fit upon the field . . . That game with Tech brought out the full possibilities of a wonderful, hard-fighting field general and saw the national championship team click properly for the first time.

Things you'll want to watch today are the perfect blocking of the Notre Dame linemen as they pave the way for the ball-carrier . . . And the smooth, instinctive running of the speedy Marchy Schwartz . . . And his passing and kicking . . . And don't neglect to note the play of Jaskwich, the quarterback, and of Mike

ANDERSON SEES IRISH VICTORS

ANDERSON'S HUNCHES

Winner	Loser
Northwestern	Illinois
Wisconsin	Minnesota
Ohio State	Indiana
Purdue	Chicago
Michigan	Princeton
Iowa	George Washington
Notre Dame	Carnegie Tech

By HEARTLY W. (HUNK) ANDERSON
Notre Dame Coach

Notre Dame is playing in enemy territory again today, and it can be depended upon to give a good account of itself in the battle with Carnegie Tech here in Pittsburgh. Our boys had a tough game last Saturday with Pitt, the strongest foe we have encountered this year, but the team came out of the game in good shape and is in fine fettle for the battle with the Tartans and should win.

Western Conference teams, with the exception of Michigan and Iowa, busy themselves with their own affairs today, and, in this connection, the outstanding game is at Minneapolis, where Minnesota and Wisconsin meet.

Neither team has been defeated in Conference play, and such mishaps as came the Gophers' way at Stanford or the Badgers' way against Penn will be forgotten. Conference teams have a way of forgetting all troubles from without.

Three teams in the Conference have managed to linger this far in the "undefeated and untied" class in their own league. They are Minnesota, Wisconsin and Northwestern. Dick Hanley's Northwestern team ought to be able to run up any kind of a score it pleases against Illinois on Saturday.

The Wisconsin-Minnesota game may shape up as a toss up, but I have an idea that the Badgers will pull through somehow.

50,000 LIKELY TO SEE NOTRE DAME TILT

They've walloped Indiana and Drake tied Northwestern and last week scored a four-to-two touchdown victory over Pitt.

When the present season was in the throes of getting underway, the wise guys said the Notre Dames weren't going to be so hot. They said too many good men had been lost from last year's championship eleven, and they said the Irish would miss Knute Rockne. Hunky Anderson was a swell guy and a good coach, so they said—but.

But the Notre Dames have fooled 'em. Players such as Helinkovich, Sheeketski, Murphy, Krause, Greeney and Devore have come along to make the passing of the Brills, Carideos, Mullins, Savoldis, Conleys, Metzgers and others easier to take. Marchy Schwartz, possibly the best left halfback in the country, has developed into a wow of a triple threat man. Big Ed Krause, only a sophomore, is just good enough to keep Al Culver, an all-America tackle selection last year, on the bench. Linemen such as Hoffman, Greeney, Tommy Yarr, Mahoney, Host, Kosky, and backs such as Jaskwich, Cronin and Leahy have shown such improvement that right now, it looks like a sure bet that this year's Irish eleven will be hailed as superior to that of 1930.

The fates haven't been so kind to Carnegie. Wrecked by the graduation of many stars and by the ineligibility of promising replacements, the Tartans have found the going rough. Georgia Tech and Buffalo have been beaten, and games have been lost to Wash-Jeff and Purdue.

TARTANS REBUILT

Bob Waddell and Wally Steffen have been forced to make fullbacks out of centers; guards out of fullbacks; tackles out of guards and ends out of halfbacks. O'Toole, who should be a center, is at fullback today. Heinzer, a natural fullback, is in there at left guard. Don Fletcher, a guard, is at tackle, and there are right tackles playing left tackle and left tackles playing right among the reserves.

The reserves, by the way, are neither numerous or especially strong. Elsaesser and Henry Dreshar must be ready for tackle jobs. Red Jones is the center understudy. Seigel and Kebe guards, and Ostrosky and Potts, both little fellows, are reserve wingmen.

The starting Skibo line today will have Stewart and Lib Lewis at the ends, Fletcher and Forsman at the tackles, Hooks Sample and Heinzer at guards and Ducanis at center. Only two of these seven started against the Irish at South Bend a year ago.

In the backfield, Stu Dueger will run the team from quarterback, Capt. Murray Armentrout and George Kavel will go at the halves, and O'Toole is to start at fullback. Kavel alone was in the backfield for the kickoff a year ago.

IRISH ON EDGE

Hunk Anderson, the head man of the Irishers, is taking no chances of being caught napping this afternoon. You may lay to that. He's going to send the same starting team into the game today he used against Pitt last week, with one exception. Jaskwich will be in there at quarterback in the place of Murphy. Jaskwich's running mates in the backfield (and how they run!) are to be Marchy Schwartz and Sheeketski, halfbacks, and the rip-snorting sophomore, Melinkovich, at full.

On the line, Capt. Tommy Yarr, a wow of a center, will be over the ball. Greeney and Hoffman will play the guards. Krause and Joe Kurth are set for the tackles, and Kosky and Mahoney at the ends.

The Tech kicking will be handled by Capt. Armentrout while he is in there. Notre Dame will assign the duty to either Schwartz or Jaskwich, or, if they are out of the action and Mike Koken in, Mike will get the job. Mike is Schwartz' understudy. Anyone on that Irish club is able and liable to pass. Dueger will handle most of the throwing for Tech.

Carnegie, I think, plans to take to the air against the South Benders today. The Tech running attack—and not so impotent, either—will have great difficulty in cracking this husky Notre Dame line, and it will not be surprising to see today's game take on the general appearance of an air meet.

CLAIRTON FACES STIFF TEST IN GREENSBURG

By JULIUS LEVIN

Old Man Elimination dreaded by scholastic football teams in the race for the W. P. I. A. L. championship hovered over the Western Pennsylvania battlefronts today as unbeaten and untied elevens prepared to clash for the right to remain in the fight for crown.

Two of the headline attractions brought together four of the leading elevens in the championship fight, Clairton engaging Greensburg at Greensburg while Wilkinsburg and Washington tangles at Washington.

DRAW BIG CROWDS

Interest in both games was high throughout Western Pennsylvania and record crowds were expected at the scenes of both battles. Greensburg has won six games, scoring 156 points to its opponents' 13. Clairton has won five games, scoring 134 points to its opponents' 0. Washington has won four games, scoring 155 points to its opponents' 6, while Wilkinsburg has held all opponents scoreless in five straight contests. Wilkinsburg has scored 119 points in its five victories.

A crowd of more than 2,000 accompanied the Clairton team to Greensburg, while Wilkinsburg has chartered a special train to carry 700 rooters to Washington. Hundreds of other Wilkinsburg supporters will make the trip by automobile.

Coach Lomond's Midland aggregation goes after its seventh straight victory by engaging Rochester at Rochester. Midland has not been scored on all season, but will face a real test today.

New Kensington, boasting a string of five straight victories, is not expected to encounter much trouble in recording its sixth. Carl Glock's boys invade Tarentum for their weekly battle and at Tarentum hasn't scored a point in five games. It is not expected to offer much opposition to the Glock machine.

NATURAL RIVALS

Ambridge, likewise undefeated but showing a scoreless tie with Monessen, faces its arch-rival Aliquippa at Ambridge in what should prove one of the best games in the Beaver Valley. Aliquippa does not present as fine a record as Ambridge, but Lippe's boys invariably play their best ball when opposed to a Rubenstein-coached eleven.

Contests between undefeated elevens, however, will not command all of the scholastic attention today. Other games that should appeal to the fans find Peabody at Donora, Rankin at Swissvale, Jeannette at Norwin, Trafford at Derry Township, New Castle at Turtle Creek, Union, Redstone at Dunbar, Connellsville at Scottdale, Georges at Uniontown, Braddock at Punxsutawney, New Brighton at Beaver, Monaca at Ellwood City, Sharpsville at Sharon, Youngwood at Hurst and Altoona at Johnstown.

SCHENLEY, CARRICK COP

Schenley, Carrick and South Hills won in yesterday's City League conflicts, Allerdice holding South to a scoreless tie. The Bellefielders downed Westinghouse, 14 to 0. Carrick smothered Perry, 20-0, and South Hills beat Allegheny, 6-0.

Homestead won its big game with Duquesne, 18 to 14. Scott High, of North Braddock, added to the coffers of Sweet Charity in dropping strong Vincent, of Erie, Pa., 12 to 6, in a nocturnal encounter. McKees Rocks blasted Dormont, 26 to 7. Charleroi surprised California with a 12-8 victory. Beaver Falls blanked Butler, 6-0. Bellevue bowed to Stowe, 13-0, and Langley beat Crafton, 6 to 0, in other important contests.

Other district engagements resulted in Erie East, of Erie, Pa., trouncing Vandergrift, 20 to 0; Mt. Lebanon measuring Carnegie, 13 to 2; Oakmont bowing to Edgewood, 33-6; McDonald whipping Canonsburg, 26 to 0; Shady Side Academy tripping Aspinwall, 12-7; Pittsburgh Catholic bowing to Johnstown Catholic, 14 to 9; Steubenville walloping Massillon, O., 68 to 0; Carmichaels toppling Brownsville, 14-0; Bridgeville kicking Cecil, 6-0, and Har Brac humiliating Oliver, 28-6. Wilcairn was whitewashed by Glassport, 26-0.

W. VA., KANSAS AGGIES CLASH

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 31.—(AP.)—Greasy Neale's West Virginia Mountaineers today are ready for Bo McMillin's Kansas Aggies, who have not been defeated since West Virginia took their measure November 9, 1930. The game will be the feature of West Virginia Day.

An estimated 1,600 high school football players from all over the state and nearby states will be the game as guests of the university athletic department. There also will be several bands on hand. The probable lineup:

West Virginia		Aggies
Kurth	L. E.	Fairbairn

W. & J. BEATEN BY TEMPLE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—(AP.)—In a tense and colorful struggle beneath the floodlights last night Temple eked out a 6-to-3 victory over Washington and Jefferson, the margin of triumph representing the difference between a touchdown and a field goal.

The Presidents scored the field goal in the first period on a surprise play at the Owls' 25-yard line. Wood and Linde made its drive first down there on a reverse play, Wilson to Romelin. Wilson gained only three yards in two line thrusts through the line and a forward pass was blocked down.

On the fourth down, Wilson dropped back to the 31-yard chalk and bolted a placement from the fingers of Port through the uprights, giving the Presidents a three-point lead.

Near the end of the second period, however, Temple obtained the ball on the visitors' 25-yard line and uncorked a series of power plays that could not be rebuffed. Driebe, a substitute for Johnson, made a first down on the one-yard line. His mates advanced the ball to within a foot of the goal, and Driebe then lugged it over, tearing through right tackle. Whittock's forward pass for the extra point was knocked down.

Again in the fourth period Temple had the ball on the W. and J. one-foot mark, but this time the timekeeper's whistle prevented the touchdown. The lineup:

W. & J.		Temple
Gruber	L. E.	Graham
Linder	L. T.	Lyon
Bryant	L. G.	Bonner
Dumar	C.	Sutin
Armstrong	R. G.	Van Inwegen

Some People Make Practice Of Collecting Sympathy

Should Mournful Souls be coddled 'n' petted?

"They certainly should . . . and if you weren't heartless, you'd realize it, instead of bawling them out!" cries Eleanor, giving us a coupla Dirty Looks.

It's all because of Danrol Danrol was a Blighted Soul who thought he had all the Bad Breaks. While others romped, he sat in corners brooding over his miseries and handing himself big gobs of sympathy.

MAN IS DEFENDED

Then along came the Only Girl and encouraged him to snap out of it and get regular. Whereupon Danrol, delighted at all this attention, proceeded to hand his life over and tell her to run it. But she didn't want to run his life. She wanted to go out and live her own. So she politely refused to be his Permanent Leaning Post, and went her way.

Whereat Danrol staggered into this column, literally adrip with tears. And we told him to wipe away the weeps and be his age. Whereat Eleanor hurls this:

"Dear Miss Martin:

"Were you ever bawled out? No doubt. Well, I'm going right now to give you a brushing over that may be of some help to you. You seem to have the idea that a person who is sad or blue can be cured easily by being told he or she is weak and worthless. I can't understand it when you yourself have been through the mill. How can you be so cruel?

"I'm referring in particular to the letter from Danrol. He is only a poor human being who has suffered greatly and when he came to you for a little advice, in order to seek the right road to happiness, you stepped on him and put him down deeper in the dumps.

KNOWS HE IS WEAK

"That man knows he's weak. You can tell that much by reading his letter. And if you have ever known a weak man, you wouldn't condemn him but brace him up with a word of 'motherly' or 'sisterly' advice, which is, after all, what he wrote to you for. He doesn't need you to tell him he is childish in the affairs of his heart. He himself realizes that. But he cannot change his own personality.

"Now, consider yourself bawled out—no hard feelings. Usually you are a very wise and intelligent person, but not in affairs such as this. There are people who need a good hard kick to make them understand, but not people like Danrol. Maybe I'm wrong.

ELEANOR."

You're wrong, sister. I'll admit I admire your Sympathetic Soul . . . , but I can't say as much for your brains.

How can I be so "cruel" as to bawl out a Poor Weak Creature like Danrol?

I can be so cruel because I know that is what he needs to jar him out of his self-made fog. I can do it because I have been through the mill myself and I know exactly what Being Sorry For Yourself can do to you . . . and your chances to ever be happy.

THRIVE ON SYMPATHY

I've known Sorrow. And like Danrol, I sat many a time and felt that Fate had picked on me . . . and when some kindly soul came along and said "why you poor thing," I knew you're having a dreadful time. I know the struggle is too much for you." did I snap out of my slump, dig my toes in, and get going? I did not. I ate up their words like candy—sat waiting for more—and sore if I didn't get 'em.

And that's what 100 per cent of the Self-Pitiers will do—if they have even a bit of encouragement. They eat up sympathy and make a profession of being Abused Martyrs. Instead of going out and going after the love or success or riches or adventures that they moan they'd like to have, "if this wasn't such a cruel world."

There's only one cure for a person like that . . . and that is making him see himself as he is . . . making him realize that what he gets out of life is up to him.

As for friend Danrol "not being able to change his personality"—hooey. Every human who is a going concern, changes and grows and develops, every day of his life. If he doesn't, that's just his bad luck—and it's useless to try and relieve him of the consequences—for he'll simply accumulate more.

EROS THE GREAT

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

Business may become the world's passion, perilous times both intrigue and frighten us, war clouds bumble and rumble overhead in the foreign news, the peculiar absorptions of the world of nineteen-thirty-one—conquest of the blue impenetrable heavens—rising and falling fortunes of Gold and Silver—wonders of radio and television and telephotography—these and more—may appropriate our sleep, our conversation, our writing, and our front pages, and still the conjuror, Eros, continues to pull old-fashioned love out of a hat—sometimes of the most unpromising battered-ness, for the ever shining eyes of some beautiful young girl!

He hasn't retired. He is doing the old tricks before new eyes, at the same dear little theater, for some surprised girl whose heart is as new and fresh as the new-milk of her skin; and her boy-friend. Any one with eyes to see can find signs that the general public is ready to return to a more devoted and numerous patronage of his show, as of yore—if only the business situation will recover its health so that sentiment, awake and refurbishing itself, can afford to set up housekeeping! Mr. Seldes, my extraordinarily elegant-and-clear-spoken neighbor, who will receive one day the only "fan" letter I have ever written, hears the footsteps of more piquant times—the return of the susceptive heart. And he is a very cool and calm young man, with ears aware of the remotest rumor of this-and-that a-doing.

What a hey-dey for me and my "sistern and brethren" if love's little show does good business again! He never closed his flowered doors, even in the coldest times and if you cared to drop in you could always find him widening SOMEBODY'S eyes and making SOMEBODY'S heart go pit-a-pat with the present of big red heart out of nothing at all. SOMEBODY is always believing in Love, and falling under the spell of his magic. Walking in the glitter that he lays around the feet of lovers. War and money and prohibition and gangs and government set us, unwilling, by the ears—but Love goes on doing his modest little tricks. And it's a good show!

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Engagement Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother and father have been separated for nearly three years but are not divorced. I am going to be married soon and the problem of wedding announcement confronts me. I cannot have the regular announcements "Mr. and Mrs. Blank announce," nor can I have just mother's name, without having the other members of the family feel hurt.

Would it be correct for me to have announcements of the following style?

Miss Mary Jones
and
Mr. James Hill Smith
announce their marriage

Regular Reader.

Under the circumstances it would be quite correct for you and your fiance to make this announcement yourselves. But the Mr. and Mrs. sequence is the correct one. Like this:

Mr. James Hill Smith
and
Miss Mary Ward Jones
announce their marriage
on Tuesday, the first of June
Nineteen hundred and thirty-one
Manchester, New Hampshire.

Gifts to a Fiance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me what is proper for a young lady to do for her fiance who is in a sanitarium, recovering from a breakdown? Are gifts proper? If so, what kind of gifts should be suitable? H.

The young lady would go to see him as often as it is advisable and no oftener. For this permission and the number of her visits and their time, she would ask the doctor, and she should punctiliously abide by his decrees.

Books are good, and so, especially, I think are magazines. Fruits or "sweets" depend on what the doctor says. A dressing gown, too, may be given by a fiancee, of course.

Graduation Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My girl friend and I had an argument the other day concerning commencement announcements. I am a senior in High School and am "keeping company" with a boy who is 21. He has been out of school for two years, but still is in town. Is it proper for me to send him an announcement? My girl friend says it is not. ALICE.

It would be very courteous and friendly of you to send this friend an announcement of this important milestone in your life. I see no reason for not sending him the announcement.

OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

Opening Game Bids

There should be a logical reason back of every act, and a player should always know why he performs each act. Suppose that we consider just when and why an opening game bid should be made.

It is an established rule to bid game upon a hand worth within two tricks of the contract, trusting partner for two of the three tricks held by the average dummy, provided the hand is worth little at any other make, which also means that the hand probably cannot win more than one or two defensive tricks. The next hand affords an excellent illustration of a hand calling for an opening game bid upon eight almost certain tricks, because it cannot afford partner normal support at any suit make, and also it is unlikely that more than one defensive trick can be won. The opening bid should be 4-Spades, hoping that an adversary will not venture to overcall the make.

♠ A-K-Q-10-7-6-4-2
♥ 7-5
♣ 9-6
♦ 8

Although it is a two-suiter, the next hand should be played at spades without mentioning the second long suit. It is improbable that game can be made at diamonds unless game also can be made at spades. Open with a bid of 4-Spades.

♠ A-K-J-7-5-4-2
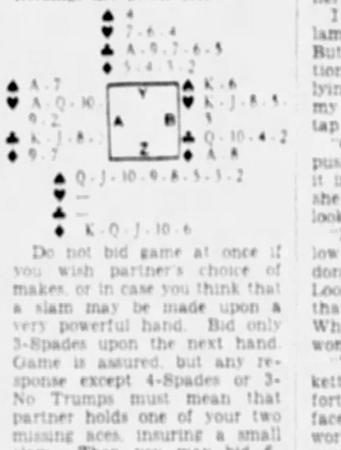
♦ K-Q-J-10-7

Never mind quick tricks if you hold a game hand. I bid 4-Spades on 2's cards and went game without winning a trick in dummy, but best of all I shut out opponents from making 5-odd at hearts. The full holdings are given below.



Do not bid game at once if you wish partner's choice of makes, or in case you think that a slam may be made upon a very powerful hand. Bid only 3-Spades upon the next hand. Game is assured, but any response except 4-Spades or 3-No Trumps must mean that partner holds one of your two missing aces, insuring a small slam. Then you may bid 6-Spades. If partner raises your spades to four he may be doing so on four small trumps, without an ace. You must go 5-Spades to tell your partner to bid six if he holds an ace.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

The Neglect of Chronic Ills Is a Human Failing

If a man is taken suddenly ill, he consults a doctor. The severity of the symptoms makes him seek aid. When the ailment, regardless of its cause, lingers on for a long time, there is a tendency to neglect it. The victim gets used to the symptoms and tries to forget the trouble.

Dr. Copeland

As a result of negligence, many diseases become chronic. The term "chronic disease" is given to any ailment that has persisted over a long period of time, for months or years.

At a recent medical meeting, it was estimated that 2 per cent of the population is constantly sick. It was stated that the economic loss resulting from chronic illness has been fixed at about $45,000,000 per year. I cannot understand why, in spite of the vast amount of suffering and unhappiness caused by chronic diseases, so many persons continue their neglect.

Frequently, one who suffers from a chronic disease has no pain. Since pain is not present, the physician is not consulted. This is an unfortunate attitude to take. You should not regard pain as the only possible symptom of trouble.

Men have died of heart disease who never had pain in the heart. Many have died of diabetes and never had pain. Cancer can start and go on for years without causing any pain.

Statistics show us that the health of many an individual is wrecked by rheumatism due to infected teeth. The original trouble did not cause pain because the roots had been killed.

High blood pressure, another common symptom of disease, can go on for years without causing any pain. Many cases of tuberculosis exist for months without any sign of pain.

Unfortunately, many people believe in the old saying: "Never trouble trouble until trouble troubles you." Their attitude is that if there is anything the matter with them, they do not want to know of it.

This is not a sign of courage. It is acting too much like the ostrich who hides his head when the enemy approaches. Since he cannot see his enemy he imagines himself to be safe.

The medical profession is your protection against these enemies to health. Seek out your physician, consult with him, and he will give you the necessary directions to maintain health and happiness.

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Junior and Roderick Voice a Protest

The temptation to "let well enough alone," in the matter of the letter to Jack Bickett grew stronger as I prepared for bed. I knew, of course, that the cumulative fatigue of the day was having its way with me, but when I had settled myself in bed, I realized that I was in that paradoxical state known as "too tired to sleep," and the thought of having to get out of bed so early in the morning was actual torture to my tautened nerves.

I switched on my reading lamp and took up a magazine. But I could not fix my attention upon the type, and I was lying listlessly with it beneath my hands when Lillian's light tap sounded on the door.

"Come in!" I called, and she pushed the door open, closing it immediately after her. Then she came up to the bed and looked down at me.

"I thought so," she said in a low tone. "You're completely done out, too tired to sleep. Look here! What is there about that stunt I can't do tomorrow? Why can't I telephone that woman?"

"You don't know Martha Halkett," I answered, making an effort to smile up at her worried face. "'Meticulous,' that overworked word, was originally invented to describe Miss Halkett's methods of thought. She will have to consult the Bible, the blue book, the book of etiquet and parliamentary procedure, to say nothing of the postal laws before she will consent to deviate from the written instructions I gave her."

I was conscious that I was libeling sane, resourceful Martha Halkett, but I could not bring myself to let even Lillian have a hand in this unpleasant business of Jack's letter. I had brought the thing on myself and I would see it through. I told myself grimly, though aware of the absurdity of my attitude.

"I'm sure you're libeling the woman," Lillian said, echoing my thought, "but with those set little lines around your mouth, I know there's nothing to be done. So I'll get you up in the morning, but first I'll put you to sleep tonight. And I'm not going to disturb Katherine either."

"Oh, no!" I exclaimed in a panic. "She'd be in here first thing in the morning to be sure I remained in bed."

"Of course. That's what I'm going to hold over your head in righteous blackmail, so that you will obey me implicitly. I'm going to get you a cup of hot milk."

I caught her sleeve as she turned away.

"But you'll promise 'Scout honor,'" I said, "that you'll waken me in the morning."

"'Cross my heart' and 'hope to die'" she quoted.

"You won't have any trouble waking me," I said with confidence, nor did she. Thanks to the hot milk and the sedatives, I slept soundly all night long, and wakened fresh, fully five minutes before she came to call me.

"One hundred per cent improvement," she pronounced, after a steady scrutiny of me. "I tell you I'm some physician."

"Have the youngsters gone yet?" I asked.

"Just finishing breakfast, but all ready to start," she answered. "Dicky wants to have them get away before the little boys wake up. Bless his heart! He's going to let them ride horseback today to their hearts' content. That will more than make up to them for not going fishing."

"Harry couldn't have taken them anyway—he wouldn't have wanted the responsibility, even if——"

"Even if Hank hadn't put in his measly little objection," she said briskly. "Of course, it's perfectly natural for them not to want the youngsters tagging along—but Hank ought to have more tact than to voice it. However, I suppose that's too much to expect of the modern boy. Is there anything I can do to help you?" as I climbed out of bed and into my bathrobe and slippers.

"Not a thing. I'll wait for my shower till I get back and go to bed again, according to my orders." I smiled at her. "And I'll be downstairs very shortly."

"I'll try to delay the departure till you get down," she said as she went out of the room. "The hardy pioneers are worth the once over."

I agreed with her when I came downstairs a few minutes later to find the fishing party assembled by the farm-work car.

All of the party were in khaki, and thanks to their own good sense and the theories of suitable dress which Lillian and I have drilled into them, Mary and Marion while wearing knickers and shirts as did the boys, did not spoil the effect and make themselves supremely ridiculous by wearing silk stockings and high-heeled shoes as do so many girls in the country. But their low-heeled sport shoes and their heavy sport hose were exceedingly modish as were their berets, all harmonizing in color, and I gave a little smile of prideful admiration at the attractive picture they made.

"Well! I guess we're all ready to start," Harry Underwood said, when from the window above us came a startled wail.

"Are you goin' fishin' and not take us?" Junior and Roderick leaned perilously from the casement window in the upper hall and chorused their chagrin.

-:- Household Hints -:-

To remove blood stains saturate them with kerosene, let them stand a few moments and then wash out with cold water, or try a little ammonia on them and then wash in lukewarm water. Old bloodstains may be removed by using iodide of potassium, diluted with four times its weight in water.

I have seen careless people wash out a medicine bottle and without changing the label, refill the bottle with some entirely different kind of medicine. This is a mighty dangerous practice, as we are not always on the job ourselves and it might prove a disastrous act to the stranger who is helping us out.

A nutritious as well as delicious sandwich for afternoon tea or Sunday night supper is made by finely chopping the white meat of a roast or boiled chicken, and to every cupful adding one-fourth cupful English walnuts. Soften to a paste with sweet cream and spread on brown bread.

NO. 550.

AN ORDINANCE—Granting to the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, its successors and assigns, the right to construct, occupy, use and maintain a vault of tunnel underneath the surface of Strawberry Way, in the First Ward of the City of Pittsburgh and for this purpose to change the location of and reconstruct a storm sewer now therein located.

SECTION 1—Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That upon the terms and conditions hereinafter set out, the right or privilege is hereby granted to The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, its successors and assigns, at its own cost and expense, to construct, occupy, use and maintain underneath the surface of Strawberry way, forward Wilkins Farm way to Maxwell way, in the First Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, in the manner, to the extent and in accordance with the plans now on file in and approved by the Department of Public Works, designated 4-B-1834, sections A to E, inclusive, and referred to as if attached hereto and made a part hereof, a vault or tunnel for telephone and telegraph cables, wires and other like facilities and appliances, and to change the location of the storm sewer now located in said part of said Strawberry way, the center line of which is approximately nine (9) feet from the southerly property line, at a location approximately one and one-half (1½) feet further from said property line, and to reconstruct same in said new location in the manner and in accordance with the said plans.

SECTION 2. The work of construction and reconstruction herein authorized to be done by The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania shall be done entirely at its own cost and expense.

SECTION 3. All the work done under the authority of this Ordinance shall be done under the supervision and inspection of the Director of the Department of Public Works, the expense of such supervision and inspection to be borne by the said The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania.

SECTION 4. The City of Pittsburgh shall at all times have the right and power to place within said underground vault or tunnel and use and operate thereon all the fire alarm, police or electrical apparatus or wires owned or used by the Bureau of Electricity of said City, for fire alarm, police or call system purposes, and at any and all times to place, replace, alter or repair the same.

SECTION 5. In consideration of the rights and privileges herein granted The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, for itself, its successors and assigns, shall covenant and agree in its acceptance of this ordinance to indemnify, save and keep harmless the City of Pittsburgh against any and all injury, damage, costs and expenses, by reason of the construction, use, occupation and maintenance of the equipment herein specified, including all damage to the surface of said Strawberry way and/or to water, gas, gas lines, sewers, wires and property of every kind and character by whomsoever owned and maintained and will defend at its own costs and expenses, all and every suit or suits for damages and/or injuries to property of person resulting from the construction, use, operation, maintenance and repair of said equipment and/or the restoration and occupation of the said way.

SECTION 6. The rights and privileges herein granted shall be subject and subordinate to the rights of the City of Pittsburgh and its powers over City streets and to the Ordinances of the City of Pittsburgh relating hereto, and to the provisions of any general Ordinance which may hereafter be passed relating to the construction, maintenance and use of structures within City streets and compensation for the same.

SECTION 7. Whenever the City of Pittsburgh shall, by Ordinance, determine to use the space occupied by the said vault or tunnel, or any part thereof, for any municipal improvement, The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania shall, upon notice thereof from the Director of the Department of Public Works of said City, at its own cost and expense, accommodate its facilities to the use of said space by the City of Pittsburgh, or, if necessary, remove said vault or tunnel, to the end that no occupancy by the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania of said space, previously granted by this Ordinance, shall conflict or interfere with the use of the same by the City of Pittsburgh.

SECTION 8. This Ordinance shall be void and of no effect unless said The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania shall within thirty (30) days after the passage and approval of this Ordinance, file with the Controller of the City a certificate of acceptance thereof and of all the conditions and provisions therein, the said certificate to be executed by the President or Vice President thereof and the corporate seal to be thereto attached, duly attested by the Secretary or Assistant Secretary.

SECTION 9. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance inconsistent with the provisions of this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

SECTION 4. The costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby and the benefits to pay the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby, in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same.

SECTION 5. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

TREAT GIVEN KOMIC CLUBS AT THEATERS

Thousands Jam Doors To Attend Meetings; Still Time to Join

Thousands of boys and girls are having a perfectly glorious time today at the meetings of the various chapters of the Warner Theaters-Sun-Telegraph Junior Komic Clubs.

Long before the time appointed for the meetings, they stood around in groups in front of their neighborhood theaters discussing the fun they had last week and wondering what surprises were in store for them today. Nor were any disappointed, for at every theater there were treats for the children, special stage entertainments and attractive prizes.

Only two weeks remain before the big show to be given at the Stanley Theater, Sunday afternoon, November 15. On that day every child whose attendance card is stamped on four out of the five squares, showing that he or she has attended four out of five meetings of the Junior Komic Club in the theater nearest home, will be entitled to free admission. A new picture, that has never been shown in any theater in Pittsburgh, will be the big attraction.

For the little ones who have joined since these cards were distributed, there will be another big free show at the Stanley next month.

Watch the Sun-Telegraph for announcements of the time and place of meeting on November 15. Motion pictures will be taken of the members on that day and these will be shown in all the theaters.

Within the next few days pictures of the officers of every chapter of the Junior Komic Clubs will appear in the Sun-Telegraph.

At the end of their four weeks' term of office, a new set of officers will be elected in each chapter, and their pictures, in turn will be published.

If you have not already joined, turn to the Comic Section of today's Sun-Telegraph, fill in the coupon you will find there, and mail it to the Warner Theaters-Sun-Telegraph Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

3 Held in Robbery Of Cleaning Plant

Three men, alleged by police to have admitted holding up Sismour's Dry Cleaning and Dyeing Company, 2425 California avenue, Monday, were held for court on charges of robbery, carrying concealed weapons and pointing firearms by Magistrate Ray Schneider today in North Side Police Court.

They are John Fox, 27, of 1220 Mimosa street; Frank Puglin, 30, of 99 South Tenth street, and George Schultz, 38, of 629 Danbury street. Puglin's fiancee, Anna Marshall, 21, of 2427 California avenue, was exonerated and discharged yesterday, in connection with the robbery.

Pittsburgher Will Lead Song Festival

W. B. Jones, of Pittsburgh, will preside at the afternoon and evening sessions of the song festival at the Welsh Congregational Church, Martins Ferry, O., Sunday, November 8. Emrys Davies, of Youngstown, will be the conductor. The program opens with a sermon in Welsh at the morning services by the pastor, the Rev. D. George Harries.

Trinity Observes All Saints' Feast

Special services commemorating the Feast of All Saints will be held tomorrow night in Trinity Cathedral, Sixth avenue. The choir, assisted by the Trinity Cathedral Choral Society, will present special music. The sermon, "Life's Separations," will be presented by the Very Rev. N. R. High Moor, dean of the cathedral.

Fire Damages Store In East Pittsburgh

Fire of undetermined origin damaged the Goldberg Department Store, 818 Linden avenue, East Pittsburgh, late yesterday.

The blaze, which was confined to the store on the first floor of the three-story brick building, damaged stock to the extent of $2,000, according to Fire Chief Charles Stack, of East Pittsburgh.

Sharpsburg Church To Honor Veterans

Veterans' Day will be observed tomorrow morning in the Grace Methodist Protestant Church, Sharpsburg, when the Rev. O. W. Bolton will speak on "Honoring Age." At the evening service the subject will be "What Christ Called His Disciples."

A Good Appointment

The Whole State Gains by the Promotion of Judge Stadtfeld—Brief Comment on Local News.

Gov. Pinchot has made a splendid appointment in naming Judge Joseph Stadtfeld for the vacancy on the Superior Court bench created by Judge James B. Drew's elevation to the Supreme Court. The Allegheny County Court of Common Pleas will sustain a loss in Judge Stadtfeld's departure. But the whole Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will gain.

Another action by Gov. Pinchot that is to his credit is his granting of County Commissioner C. C. McGovern's request that state troopers be sent to Pittsburgh Tuesday to guard the polls. There was ample warrant for McGovern's request in the evidence that the corrupt Republican machine is still fighting desperately to maintain control of the county.

*State troopers are needed to guard the polls be*cause the city police, under the control of the Kline-Coyne machine, have been found unreliable in elections. They have to be politicians to keep their jobs. Probably most of them find it as disgusting as it is to the citizens, and would be glad of an opportunity to do their duty without regard to political considerations.

*The situation being what it is, Public Safety Di*rector Clark's remark that there would be less corruption and dishonesty in the Police Bureau if the police were taken out of politics is rather surprising. It is doubtful if they were ever deeper in politics than they have been under Director Clark, although the chief responsibility lies on Mayor Kline rather than [illegible] Clark.

The big police shakeup, by the way, that was to have occurred right after the primary has not materialized. Mayor Kline, it was reported, was to demote and dismiss and transfer numerous officers who failed to carry their districts for the Kline-Coyne candidates. Such a move would have been characteristic of Kline. Can it be that he has had a change of heart?

The Kline administration appears to be engaged in a bona fide effort to reduce the city tax rate. Director Lang, of the Department of Public Works, is especially active in slashing expenses. Not only heavy taxpayers such as the members of the Building Owners' and Managers' Association, but [illegible] owners of modest homes will be grateful for this relief.

u can't have your cake and eat it, too. Yet Pittsburgh may get some public improvements without paying for them in the form of taxes. We have reference to the work to be done by destitute men under the auspices of the Allegheny County Emergency Association, which will pay their wages out of the $3,000,000 to be collected at the same time the Welfare Fund is raised.

The fact that the citizens' contributions which are to pay for the public work to be done under the Emergency Association's auspices will be voluntary instead of compulsory will not deter conscientious persons from giving generously if they are able. Self-respecting people do not accept charity if they can avoid it, but pay for services rendered them.

It is surprising, though, when one comes to think about it, how many services and favors we receive for which we neither pay nor are expected to pay. Here, for example, is the announcement that the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, for the first time in its history, will give a radio broadcast tomorrow afternoon—a Tschaikowsky symphony and other beautiful numbers.

Apropos of fine arts and Sunday entertainment, you will enjoy the Gravure Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, for it will present in full color reproductions of some more of the paintings in the Carnegie Institute's international exhibition. The prize-winning pictures in the amateur photograph contest will also be found interesting.

*In the March of Events Section of the Sunday Sun-*Telegraph will be found a thought-provoking article dealing with the most important problem that faces humanity—the question of the life hereafter. Thomas A. Edison's beliefs and theories of life and immortality are presented in his own words as recorded by an interviewer.

To many of the younger people, and to some of the older folks, too, the reports of the football games will be the most interesting news in the Sunday paper. Notwithstanding the accidents that have marred football games this autumn, enthusiasm for the sport remains unabated, possibly because of the college spirit that it engenders.

*Pitt, by the way, is to be congratulated on its de*cision that if college spirit cannot be promoted without hazing it is not worth having. There was some paddling, a week ago, of freshmen accused of failing to conform to the traditional requirements of first-year men, but it was only half-hearted. And now the Pitt Weekly boldly declares the whole business is silly and disgusting.

*Pitt and Carnegie Tech are both to be congratu*lated on the stand they have taken to prevent student disorders in connection with the forthcoming game between the two universities. Pitt was prompt in repudiating the action of students who painted Pitt slogans on the Tech campus. We want no riots such as have marked this rivalry in other years.

Leaders of the riot which occurred at Wildwood last April in connection with the coal strike were sentenced to prison terms yesterday. Among them was Thomas Myers, Gough, Communist candidate for District Attorney, who was sentenced to serve two years. A fine District Attorney he would be! By the Reds, however, he probably will be acclaimed as a martyr.

There are indications that the coal business is picking up, along with steel and other industries. It is to be hoped it is more than the seasonal revival that always develops on the approach of cold weather. The international conference called by Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Tech, to consider economic aspects of the coal industry, should prove helpful.

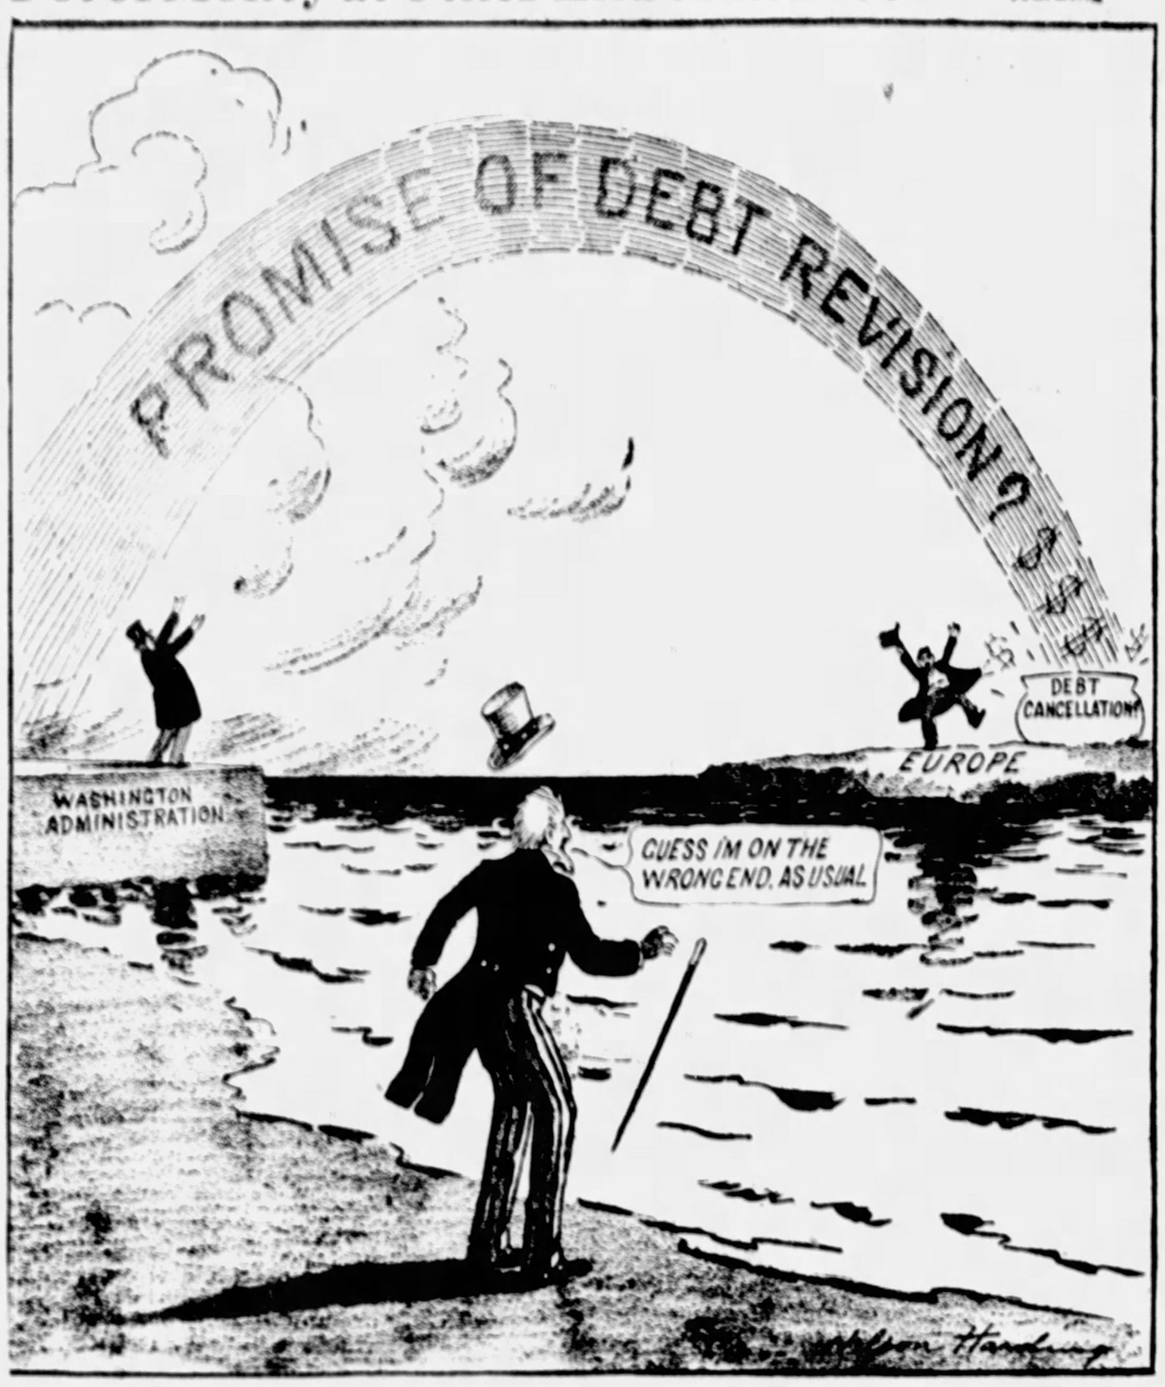
Pot of Money at Other End of Rainbow

By Nelson Harding



Another bow of promise forms
An arch across the tide,
But seems to be most promising
Upon the other side.

For Uncle Sam, as usual,
Is on the losing end.
That pot of gold is not for him
Whose job is just to lend.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Part-Time Husbands

Every now and then, some ardent feminist arises to point with pride to some woman who has made a brilliant success of both matrimony and her profession.

Oh well, it CAN be done, of course. Blondin walked across Niagara on a slack rope. But such feats are not everyday affairs—nor for ordinary mortals.

It's a rare woman who can be both a hundred per cent wife and a hundred per cent business (or professional) success at the same time. And a rare man who can stand that kind of woman—or bear up under that kind of life.

Whenever I see a brilliant, capable, successful woman about to marry a nice, normal, efficient heman, I close my eyes and shudder. Because I know that one of two tragedies is about to happen.

Either she is going to begin softening his backbone by lifting all the responsibilities off of it. Or, when the irresistible force of her ambition meets the immovable body of his masculine will and self-respect, there is going to be a terrible cataclysm! With broken hopes, shattered dreams and all sorts of wreckage in its wake.

A lot of women are born capable and efficient, and a lot of men are born sweet and beautiful and timid and spineless—and these make perfect mates.

Of course, it is hard to envision a strong, fine, intelligent woman gazing tenderly down into the eyes of a sweet, adoring man and calling him her dear little helpmate. But, after all, if a woman MUST have a career of her own, why shouldn't she be satisfied with a "second" as a husband?

That is much fairer than taking a potentially fine, upstanding man and insidiously ruining him by making life too soft and easy for him. For, next to canned fish, nothing is so easily "spoiled" as a man. Take him off the ice of hard work, and put him in the sun of ease and irresponsibility, and he becomes soft and impossible in no time.

You can't have EVERYTHING in this world. And a career and matrimony are the oil and water that won't mix. To a successful woman, who runs a shop, an office, a big job or a theater, a husband is usually only an afterthought. And mighty few men are willing to be spare-time husbands.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Any time there is a loose drunk in a cafe and I am dining there, sooner or later he will be pulling up a chair to mine. And I will hear how unhappily he is married, how many millions he lost in the crash or what a big bum I am.

I never escape. There is something about me—doubtless my frankly open countenance—that will draw a souse, as steel springs to magnet, from rollicking companions across the room either to weep on my shoulder or to inquire what the soandso I mean sneering at him?

As a matter of fact I neither look left nor right. I have never even seen a waiter's face. A timid mouse nibbling at cheese could not be more unobtrusive than I in a public dining room. Nor could Lord Fauntleroy himself be more the perfect little gentleman.

If anyone kicks my chair in passing I take out it's my fault. If I am brought something I did not order I wouldn't complain for anything. I do not add up my check for fear it will hurt someone's feelings. And I tip-toe out so as not to disturb other customers.

Yet in spite of this I'm forever getting into hot water when eating out. In the Victor Hugo in Los Angeles one evening a lady lost her purse. I was several tables away and when the search began I got up, just as a gesture, to shake myself like a wet dog. And if I wasn't sitting on it! In the old Gerdes in Cincinnati one after midnight I sat alone enjoying a bowl of hot milk and crackers. And trying to figure a sure shot at Latonia. The next I knew firemen were walking me Spanish through the basement. The place had been afire a half hour.

Then there was the moonlit evening Mike Hogg and I wandered into a dining room in Palm Beach. We ate what was served, supposing it a table d'hote meal, and were having a second helping of dessert when a gavel tapped. We suddenly found ourselves uninvited guests at an undertakers' banquet.

Such dining out horrors were refreshed in memory by an experience last night. It was in a garishly lit place off Broadway. There was one of those walking-around stews in circulation again, too. So far as I could see he was in love with everybody in the place with one exception. I was naturally that exception. I happened to be wearing a sky-blue shirt and collar with darker blue tie and handkerchief to match. Steadying himself and bestowing an appraising glance he mumbled "All in blue"—and lurched on.

That was o. k. with me. I'm used to a beating about what I wear. I can take it. Anyway I was having an affair with the best pair of lamb chops I ever tasted. But it didn't satisfy him. In ten minutes he was in again. "Lissen, Little Boy Blue," he began, "don't you know you'll go plumb to rack and ruin drinking all that iced tea?" And I laughed that off—from the teeth out.

Teetering and holding to a chair he inquired: "Mind if I sit?" I didn't mind if he did lots of things, including a nip up off the Empire tower, but I nodded welcome. Then he tried to light a cigaret and the way he handled a lighted match made me sigh that celluloid collars went out. Finally he located me again through a one-eyed squint. "Why don't you," he inquired, "get yourself all beered up pretty like me and schottische or something. Don't be a hunk of cold potato all your life."

* * *

Sometimes one is able to squelch a stew by upstaginess so I high toned: "Gentlemen should never pontificate over trivia in public cafes." Then I winked at my companion and continued my romance with a chop. He quit weaving at that one and sat as though completely benumbed. He was almost forgotten when I happened to look up and two tears were stealing down his cheeks. I'm one of those softies who melts at tears. I went over, patted his shoulder and said: "See here, old man, don't go on like that, everything—"

At that he struggled up, clenched his fist and rushed at me muttering: "Nobody is going to call my poor dead grandmother a dirty name." That explains the Human Cannon Ball many saw shooting through Forty-ninth street last evening. And was I going to town!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I am looking at a sunny slope. Four acres of tangled wild grasses and oaks turning bronze and gold in the sparkling fall air. Four acres of wilderness. How many different things could be done with those acres!

A farmer, studying their rich and varied soils, would straightway cut down all their gypsy timber, plough them deeply, set them to bearing grapes, figs, apples and olives.

An architect would shout with horror at the thought of touching them with a plough or ax. Delightful in their sweep of coppery branch and golden turf against the violet sky, he would crown them with a lovely mansion, creamy Italian stucco with rosey tiles—or a great castle of old gray stone with scarlet flags.

A naturalist would scorn alike the crops and castles. He would lose himself in contemplation of the infinite forms of life which those four acres support. The thousands of "common weeds," so exquisitely colored, so delicately made—spreading everywhere in a silver and russet mat, heavy with seeds. The buzzing, crawling, flying, burrowing insect people, which live upon and beneath the weeds—grasshoppers, butterflies, wasps, ants, bees, gnats . . . numberless . . . each a race apart, with peculiar laws and customs. The wild flowers, breaking in glowing tides, from season to season. The tiny furry creatures—rabbits, wood mice, gopher, squirrel. The fierce wild hunters—bob cat, lynx, coyote, mountain lion, bear, fox. The winged armies of birds—filling the air with their constant flutter and swoop and song. The great trees, looming like giants above it all—living aloof.

An engineer, indifferent to all this, would go straight to the fine spring, and begin to plan how he would pipe it to all the thirsty land.

An artist, drunk with delight, would see only Beauty. The pearly shimmer of the morning light, clinging in wet webs to stalk and stone. The heavy, amber flood of noonday sun. The twilight spreading, pale as very blue as smoke. The bright stars tangled in the dark blue pines.

And the real estate man would see dollars—

And the poet would see words—

And the tired woman, with a baby in her arms, would see a home—

And the rest would see his God.

Four acres. The same four acres always, holding the same life, the same soil and water and light. Yet each man who faces them finds some different thing—some different adventure.

And I thought, looking at those four acres, how life is like that. The old, wild acres of life, with their unvarying mysterious tangle of joy and pain, success and failure, love and hate, peace and war, birth and death. Each man, in his turn, must face those acres . . . those same acres. But no two men ever see the same thing in those acres, or take the same thing from them.

There they lie—life in the raw—the makings of what? That depends on the man, and his desire and capacity, and the amount he is willing to pay.

Passing through that tangle, one man will find Beauty . . . and another will find Wisdom . . . and another will find Power . . . and another will find Money . . . and another will find Comfort . . . and another will find Love . . . and another will find the stuff that dreams are made of. And a few, a very few, will walk with God.

Text for Today For the poor shall never cease out of the land: therefore I command thee, saying, Thou shalt open thine hand wide unto thy brother, to thy poor, and to thy needy, in thy land.—Deuteronomy, xv:11.

The Cat Is Out Of the Bag

By Claude G. Bowers

One of the reasons for the unpopularity of the President is the feeling that he is something less than frank in dealing with the people of whom he is the servant. When, on the approach of the conversations between Mr. Hoover and M. Laval, it was said that one of the subjects for discussion would be a cancellation or reduction of the debts, we were given to understand by seemingly authoritative spokesmen of the administration that nothing was more remote from the intention. But the morning papers, appearing just as the French Premier passed out of the harbor of New York, announce that the President will ask Congress to cut the debts.

There never was any doubt in our mind that one of the purposes of the visit of the clever leader of France was to persuade the President to that very course. Nor can we believe that the project was sprung upon the President unexpectedly. In the numerous conferences in Paris between J. P. Morgan and M. Laval, just before the latter announced his American visit, we have no doubt that this was one of the subjects of the conversations. Nor can we believe that the administration was in utter ignorance of those conversations in Paris.

France Prosperous Compared With Us

It is assumed by some that the approach to this policy, devoutly to be wished by the banks holding foreign bonds and investments, is to be made through the appointment of another commission to study our debtors' "capacity to pay." It is to be taken for granted that this commission will not overlook the study of our own capacity to pay. France is one of the debtor nations, and compared with us, she is most prosperous. She has no deficit of far more than a billion dollars, as we have. She is not resorting to the floating of bonds to meet the necessities of government as we are. She has comparatively no jobless on the streets and we have from six to seven millions. She has had no flood of bank failures, and we have. She is not preparing to increase the taxation on her people, and we are.

It will be interesting to learn how this proposed commission can figure it out that France does not have the "capacity to pay" what she borrowed from us, and that we have the capacity to take over, not only the debt of France, but of 13 other nations, and put it on the backs of our own people.

Isn't it strange that in the midst of the most tragic depression we have ever known, no one seems to doubt our capacity to pay the debts of the world?

Proposition Certain to Meet With Opposition

When the President submits this proposition to the Congress, there is every indication that it will meet with opposition, regardless of party lines. Even Senator Fess, who ordinarily bestows his blessing on anything of Republican origin, now stands mute—because he had previously denounced the idea. The insurgent Republicans are almost certain to make a fight, and from these we may expect very plain and unpleasant speaking. Senator Brookhart's comment, whether you like it or not, will be heard many times upon the floor of the Senate:

"It is entirely plain that the burden of any proposed reduction or of an outright cancellation is to fall on the American taxpayer. As I see it we cannot approve moratoriums and debt cuts or cancellation as a subsidy to Morgan & Co. and other big bankers and with a view to making their private claims in Europe good."

Brookhart voices the sentiment of the corn rows.

Senator Thomas, who hails from the Southwest, expresses the same thought when he says:

"It looks like our government is making moves in the interest of holders of foreign bonds and investments."

Grundy Tariff Bars Nations from Paying Debts

One of the reasons our debtors lack the capacity to pay now is that the Hoover administration, with an economic stupidity that is almost incredible, has forced the Grundy tariff act upon the statutes to make it impossible for our debtors to maintain their usual trade with us. The administration has enormously reduced the debtor nations' capacity to pay by making it impossible for them to make the money with which to pay. This has driven other nations to unhealthy and impossible trade restrictions in retaliation and in self defense. Cordell Hull, one of the few real economists in Congress, hits the nail on the head when he says:

"We cannot practice the policy of economic isolation—high tariffs and restrictions on international trade—and have any expectation of these debts being paid."

The bankers know that; some of them have said that; but the bankers who have been able to convince the President that he is wrong on cancellation could have persuaded him that he is wretchedly wrong in insisting on the continuation of our economic isolation. Why have they not done it? Is it because of their partisan bias? The pride of outworn opinion? Or is it because they think cancellation is the easiest way for them to protect their private investments?

Was Laval Warned Not to Mention Tariff!

Did J. P. Morgan in the preliminary discussions with Laval in Paris express any interest in the tariff phase of the world's depression?

When the magnificent arr[illegible] New York bankers sat down the President in secret mee[illegible] in the apartment of Mr. Mel[illegible] did they have the courage to to President Hoover that the ta[illegible] walls had to be scaled down?

Was M. Laval warned not to broach the subject of the tariff's part in the world's depression when he came? His government has filed a protest with Secretary Stimson—did he not mention it at all?

Meanwhile, Borah holds the headlines, and his critics would be astonished to know how general is the opinion that he came nearer putting M. Laval in possession of the facts of average public opinion than did the representatives of the administration with whom he talked. More and more the feeling grows that Borah rendered a service when he spoke out—only after being earnestly solicited to do so by the French correspondents.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

If you can't engage in recreational sports without complaining of your bad luck and unfortunate breaks, keep out of them.

You may be a pretty good sort of a fellow in other ways, and people may like you till they engage in a game with you.

Then you not only bore them, but you detract from their enjoyment of their favorite pastime.

If the truth were told most of your mistakes, "bad breaks" as you call them, are due to your failure to do a certain thing correctly according to fundamental principles of the game.

You know the rudiments of the game.

But you won't concentrate sufficiently to play the game as it should be played to get a good score.

This being true, why allow yourself to be wrought up to the state of being a disagreeable companion?

Then making alibis—is this one of your weaknesses?

Why should you expect everything to be avorable all the time?

Of course you do not speak of your very fortunate breaks.

Why not try to balance the favorable against the unfavorable?

Isn't It So?

A hypocrite is a person who falls down on the homestretch.

Some people think they can't have a good time without having a wicked time.

Applause in church is inappropriate, but many indicate approval of the sermon by nodding.

The man who succeeds in this world is the man who makes his mark instead of being an easy mark.
